

McNary Secretly Suggests Compromise of 15 Month On Extension of NRA

WASHINGTON — The embattled Senate and House Democratic floor leaders have received from a Republican source a plan for the amicable solution of their bitter quarrel over the extension of the NRA.

Charley McNary, astute Senate Republican floor leader, has proposed that they split the difference.

The Senate leaders want the NRA's life limited to eight months. The House chiefs, under the spurring of the President and Richberg, are holding out for two years.

McNary has secretly suggested that they compromise on September 1, 1936, a 15-month extension.

Wrong Bottle

Florida's Representative William Sears was making a warm plea before the House Ways and Means Committee for approval of his bill permitting the manufacture of citrus wines and cordials under the same internal revenue taxes as those assessed on California grape wines.

"Gentlemen," he said, "I have with me some samples of citrus wines which will give you an idea of their high quality and mildness."

Sears handed a nearby member of the committee a bottle. The latter sniffed, passed it to his neighbor. Thus the bottle went down the line of committee members each taking a gingerly sniff, until it reached Chairman North Doughton, rugged North Carolina mountaineer.

Doughton lifted the bottle to his mouth and took a hearty swig. As the crowded room watched him, he suddenly gagged, gasped, coughed violently.

"Say," he demanded when he finally got his breath, "what is this stuff? I thought you said it was wine. Tastes like spirits to me."

Sears hastily examined the bottle. "I'm terribly sorry, Mr. Chairman," he apologized. "I made a mistake. I gave you the wrong bottle. This is a tangerine brandy with a 40 per cent alcohol content."

Share Croppers

On the heels of the 4,000 farmers who "marched" on Washington last week, came another group much less welcome to Henry Wallace and Chester Davis.

They were a delegation of share croppers from Arkansas, Mississippi and Alabama. Victims of the adjustment program, they had no cheery Wallace or Davis or Hopkins. A meagre handful of men—both white and black—they are picketing government buildings with placards of protest.

Their quarrel with the AAA is that its cotton reduction program has resulted in the eviction of thousands of tenant and share cropper families.

Their quarrel with FERA is that, having been evicted, they are denied relief by local agents if they join a union as a means of protesting against losing their crop.

This pitiful pilgrimage was organized by the Southern Tenant Farmers Union, which claims to have a membership of 6,000 share cropper families, paying dues of 10 cents a month.

They declare that if they don't get satisfaction from Wallace and Hopkins, they will transfer their picketing to the White House.

Coal and Power

The bill to strengthen the powers of the TVA is meeting some hard sledding in the House.

The bill gives the Tennessee Valley Authority, among other things the right to sell power in competition with private companies. Without this approval by Congress, some TVA rosters say the vast project will be completely hamstrung.

For this reason, Senator George Norris, papa of the TVA, is

DIRECTOR WARNS "CHISELERS" ON RELIEF

Congress Listens to F. D. R.

Welfare of People Deserves Prior Action, Roosevelt Tells Congress Today

By GEORGE R. HOLMES

WASHINGTON, May 22—President Roosevelt vetoed the veterans' bonus bill today and then explained to a semi-hostile congress his reasons for so doing.

His personal appearance before a joint session, under highly dramatic circumstances, blazed a new trail in presidential procedure.

Mr. Roosevelt said he could not approve paying off the bonus at this time because:

1. The veterans already have hospitalization, employment preference, etc. — benefits not accorded other citizens.

2. It is class legislation for a minority.

Disadvantage to All

3. The proposed method of financing — issuance of treasury notes — is unsound, and would work eventually to the disadvantage of the veterans themselves as well as to the country as a whole.

4. The debt is not due at this time, the contract calling for payment in 1945.

5. The general welfare of the whole people deserves prior consideration to the claims of the veterans.

6. Cash payment at this time would mean an outright gift of $1,600,000,000 to the veterans, above the present value of their compensation certificates.

These were the principal reasons Mr. Roosevelt advanced for disapproving the bill, and he entered into a detailed explanation of each of them. A crowded chamber, from floor to galleries, heard his 5,000-word message, although many senators "cut" the joint session.

Carefully noting the hostility of congress to his mission, the president prefaced his message by asserting at the outset he did not question the good faith of congress in enacting the legislation. His disapproval, he said, was in the same spirit.

Lists Benefits

He recounted at considerable length what the government already has done for the veterans, estimating the total cost of the benefits to date at $7,800,000,000. Payment of the certificates at this time, coupled with normal current

GAS COMPANIES PAY BACK TAX

COLUMBUS, May 22—The state's coffers were enriched by $717,783.40 today as Attorney General John W. Bricker announced settlement of Ohio's claims against the Ohio Fuel Gas company for excise taxes as far back as 1928.

Bricker accepted the settlement of the original state claim of $1,086,048.24 after the state tax commission formally approved the settlement. The payment included $715,633.77 for excise taxes levied against Ohio Fuel Gas company and the Logan Gas company from 1928 to 1934; $1,859.66 for disputed taxes of the Northwestern Ohio Natural Gas company for the same period; and $169.97 from the Columbus Gas and Fuel company from 1931 to 1934.

Federal Prison Looms for Persons Who Misrepresent Their Needs

MORE ORDERS GIVEN

Assistance Asked by County Director

Warning that persons who apply for relief and misrepresent their circumstances are subject to federal imprisonment, Otto S. Coffey, relief director, announced today that an intensive drive against "chiselers" is in the offing.

Mr. Coffey is faced with a situation which has resulted from agitation. Many families that have not previously been on relief have been applying and receiving grocery orders from the relief office.

Receives More Aid

Tuesday, the director called the office of his chief, C. C. Stillman, federal administrator for Ohio, and asked for more aid in investigating relief cases. As a result Mr. Stillman has assigned three investigators to review relief cases and weed out the "chiselers."

"The situation is difficult enough," Mr. Coffey said, "without persons who are not entitled to relief coming to our office for orders."

"We will not tolerate 'chiselers' on relief," he declared. Projects were resumed Wednesday morning and many heads of families who have been out of work for two weeks were given jobs. There are six works projects in the county.

Mr. Coffey said that as soon as possible he intends to re-arrange his office staff, possibly adding new persons if necessary, giving each their specific duties. "I intend to have a smooth-working organization as soon as possible," the director stated.

Urges Co-operation

He urges co-operation of all persons, those on relief and those not needing aid, and pledges that his office will do everything it can to right the relief problem in Pickaway-co.

COLUMBUS, May 22—"Complete accord" on plans for the co-ordination and operation of activities in connection with the administration of the new federal public works program in Ohio was announced at state relief headquarters here today following a conference between the three officials who will be in charge of the program in the state.

Three In Parley

The three officials, each of whom declared the "conference was in perfect agreement," were Charles C. Stillman, Ohio FERA head; L. A. Boulay, head of the state PWA, and Benedict Crowell, state director of the National Emergency council.

SHOW OF GARDEN CLUB POSTPONED

The flower show of the Pickaway-co Garden Club has been postponed until May 31 and June 1, it was decided Tuesday evening when officers of the organization met.

Weather which has been unsuitable for the show is the reason for the postponement.

The event, however, promises to be interesting with many prizes to be offered. Complete programs which include the classes and awards in each can be obtained at Ebert's soda grill.

WEILER IN OFFICE

E. W. Weiler, sales tax examiner for Pickaway-co, announced today that he will be in his office every afternoon until 4 o'clock from now on having completed his tour of the county to help vendors prepare their sales reports.

Mr. Weiler has changed his residence and his home telephone now is No. 747.

POSTMASTER HITS 'CHAIN LETTERS'

COLUMBUS, May 22—Postmaster Nathan A. McCoy entered the battle of federal forces against chain letter promoters here today, ordering all missives suspected of being chain mail held at city post-offices.

McCoy said all chain letters will be stacked in postoffices, pending orders from federal postal authorities on the disposition of the letters.

PAROCHIAL AID VOTE IS URGED

Bitinger Demands Committee Vote Measure to Floor of Assembly

COLUMBUS, May 22—Insisting that the $3,000,000 parochial school appropriations bill be brought to a vote in the Ohio house of representatives, Speaker J. Freer Bitinger and other administration leaders importuned members of the finance committee to report it back to the house with a recommendation for passage.

Twice having failed to muster enough support to reach the floor, the parochial school measure which the senate has passed, was to be reconsidered this afternoon if there is a quorum of the finance committee.

Twelve favorable votes are necessary to report the bill out. The last time it was before the committee, only 11 members would vote for the bill.

ALL TEACHERS OF CITY HIRED ANOTHER YEAR

Board Acts on Recommendation of Mr. Fischer; Salaries Same

ALL FOR ONE YEAR

To be Assigned to Positions in August

All teachers in the city school system were re-employed for another year when the board of education met Tuesday evening.

Supt. Frank Fischer recommended their employment and after discussion in which the superintendent and board of education spent considerable time all were offered one-year contracts.

Mr. Fischer said today that he is anticipating no vacancies, expecting all teachers to accept their contracts.

Assigned in August

No drastic changes are planned in the assignment of principals and teachers, the superintendent declared. Teachers will be assigned their grades and schools sometime in August.

Salaries next year will remain practically the same as now in effect. A pay reduction made quite a while ago was restored in recent months.

There are 51 teachers on the city school payroll including Supt. Fischer and High School Principal E. I. Gephart.

Janitors for the various buildings will not be employed until sometime in July.

COLUMBUS, May 22—The state relief administration distributed $73,460 to 5,176 students enrolled at 59 colleges and universities as wages for "social work" during April, C. C. Stillman, federal relief administrator, announced today.

GIRL CONVICTED IN KNIFE DEATH

NEW ORLEANS, La., May 22—Bonnie Hill, alien Marion King, 23-year-old night club habituée, today was convicted of manslaughter for the fatal stabbing of her sweethearts, John Irving Pierce, also 23, in the "Nut Club" here on March 22.

The sentence was deferred. The minimum sentence for manslaughter is six years and the maximum is 20 years, with time off for good behavior.

The highlight of the trial came when the defendant took the stand in her own defense and re-enacted the events leading up to the fatal stabbing.

Classes of 1914 and 1915 Summoned for Year's Military Service

BERLIN, May 22—Germany's new conscription law, making every able-bodied man and woman in the Reich between the ages of 18 and 45 eligible for wartime service in trench, field, home or factory, was officially inaugurated today when the nation's "war babies" were called up for service.

General Von Reichenau on behalf of War Minister General Von Blomberg, announced that the classes of 1914 and 1915, consisting of young men born while Germany was grappling with the allies on the eastern and western fronts, had been summoned for one year's military and labor service beginning November 1.

Reserve Half Million
The class of 1915 numbers 590,853 and that of 1914 approximately the same, with 55 per cent of each fit for active service, giving Germany an immediate active reserve force of more than 550,000 men.

Von Reichenau announced that men of the classes of 1910 through 1913 will be permitted to serve in the army if they volunteer. Otherwise, he said, they will be called only for a brief period of training. Conscripts liable to service during the present year have already been registered, it was said.

WOMAN KILLED IN AUTO CRASH AT CEDAR HILL

Mrs. Willison Spangler, 62, of Tarlton, Dies of Fractured Skull

AUTO TURNS OVER

Funeral Service at M. E. Church Thursday

Crushed beneath an overturned automobile, Mrs. Irene Spangler, 62, wife of Willison Spangler, well known Tarlton resident, was killed almost instantly early Tuesday evening at the crossroads in Cedar Hill, Fairfield-co.

Her husband, who has been a road maintainer for Pickaway-co for about 10 years, and who was driving the car, was slightly injured.

The accident happened, it is reported, when Mr. Spangler became confused at the crossroads in the Fairfield-co village. His Chevrolet struck a culvert and turned over, throwing Mrs. Spangler from the car and turning over on her. Her head was crushed.

Reared in Community

Mrs. Spangler was one of the Tarlton community's best known women. She was born and reared in the Saltcreek-twp village. Her parents were the late William and Isabelle Rose Roberts. She was an active member of the Methodist church.

Besides her husband she is survived by two children, Albert, well known athlete, and Ella May, both at home; a sister, Mrs. Mary Trimmer of near East Ringgold, and a brother, Dr. R. M. Roberts, of Washington, Pa.

Funeral Thursday

The funeral will be Thursday at 2:30 p. m. at the Tarlton Methodist church with Rev. S. C. Elsen officiating with interment in the village cemetery by H. E. Deffenbaugh and Son.

Pall bearers will be Charles Schwin, Charles Wilson, John Morrison, Frank Shride, Arthur Shaffer and Arnold Reichelderfer.

COLUMBUS, May 22—The body of a man found lying on the C. & O. railroad tracks in west Columbus this morning, was identified today by his two sons as James Douglas, 76, of New Holland.

Announcement of the identification of the man, whose mangled body was sighted on the tracks by a railroad engineer, was made by Coroner E. E. Smith after the body had been viewed by James and William Douglas, brothers.

The brothers took charge of the body, announcing that funeral arrangements would be held at the New Holland cemetery on Friday. The elder Douglas was a widower.

PATRIOTIC ORDERS TO GATHER SUNDAY

Circleville's patriotic organizations will observe Memorial Sunday, May 26, by attending special services at the Presbyterian church Sunday at 10:15 a. m.

Rev. E. S. Toensmeier will preach the sermon.

Organizations included in the Memorial Sunday rites are American Legion, auxiliary, Spanish American war veterans, Daughters of Union Veterans and Daughters of the American Revolution.

If any person desiring to attend is without transportation Frank Littleton, commander of the Legion post, should be contacted.

All organizations are to meet at Memorial hall at 10 a. m. to march with the Legion to the church.

TIGERS ANNEX LEAGUE LINKS HONORS AGAIN

John Jenkins Scores 80 to Top Central Buckeye League Golfers

The high school Tigers successfully defended their Central Buckeye league golf title, Tuesday, turning back Granview, Westerville, Bexley and Delaware, the schools finishing in the order named.

The Red and Black combined scores of 80, 87, 88 and 99 to defeat their foes.

The totals were: Circleville, 354; Grandview, 363; Westerville, 392; Bexley, 339; Delaware, 431.

Marysville did not enter a team.

John Jenkins Low

John Jenkins had the low gross score for the day with 41-39, 80, eight above par figures for the Pickaway Country club lay-out. His brother, Joe, carded 87, Clark Styers hit the pill for 88 and Harry Richey scored a 99.

Murdock, of Grandview, was second in the medalist class with an 85.

All the members of the high school team are caddies at the country club.

Central Comes Here

A worthy opponent will be offered the high school golf team next Monday when Columbus Central high school invades the local course.

Central is reputed to have one of the best high school golf teams in central Ohio.

TINNING CHOICE TO HALT MILLERS

COLUMBUS, May 22—With the third game of their series slated for today, both the Minneapolis Millers and Columbus Red Birds were expected to send their ace hurlers to the mound in an effort to gain an advantage in the current series, which now stands at one game apiece.

Bud Tinning, recently acquired by the Birds from the St. Louis Cardinals, is expected to get the "nod" from manager Ray Blades while Walter Tauscher probably will be the Kels flinger.

A ninth inning Bird rally fell shy in yesterday's battle and the Millers captured a hard-fought 7 to 6 contest. A circuit clout by Johnny Gill, Kel outfielder, with a mate on base in the seventh frame scored the winning run.

Latoria Derby June 1

CINCINNATI, May 22—With one of the track's best meetings in prospect, today's arrivals at the Latoria oval, near here, are expected to shove the track's thoroughbred population well towards the 900 mark.

The feature of the meet, which opens Saturday, is expected to be the Latoria Derby, June 1, which is one of the nation's largest turf affairs.

BROWNS SET FOR CELLAR

Sell Newsom and Trade Blaeholder, Aces of Staff; Gives Hornsby Headache

NEW YORK, May 22—The St. Louis Browns today had dispelled any lingering doubts that may have existed regarding the eventual occupant of the American league cellar. The Browns themselves took at least a one year's lease on that unwanted spot yesterday when they sold Buck Newsom to the Senators and traded George Blaeholder to the Athletics for Sugar Cain and Big Ed Coleman.

In exchange the Browns got $50,000 and Rajah Hornsby got a couple more headaches.

Although the Browns made their team more helpless and hopeless than ever by parting with the only real pitchers they had, they assured a tighter race up above.

The addition of Newsom should make the Senators a decided pennant threat for he will strengthen them where they were weakest and the Athletics, too, may move into the picture with Blaeholder, an experienced pitcher who should prove a winner with a good club behind him.

The new set up assures a seven club scramble and what happens to the Browns won't make much difference for they weren't going anywhere anyhow.

TIPPY SERGEANT

COLUMBUS, May 22—Ohio State university's football team will snap through its paces with more precision next fall under the commands of First Sergeant "Tippy" Dye, Pomeroy quarterback.

"Tippy", named William Henry Harrison Dye by his parents, after the famed Indian fighter and president, was promoted to the rank of first sergeant in the university R. O. T. C., officials announced today.

THREE KILLED QUALIFYING IN MOTOR EVENT

Stubblefield, Veteran Race Driver, One of Victims; Other Qualify

INDIANAPOLIS, May 22—Three men were dead and a fourth lay in a critical condition today after two streaking cars were wrecked on the Indianapolis speedway in qualifying trials for the 500 mile automobile classic.

The dead are W. H. "Stubby" Stubblefield, 27, veteran Los Angeles race driver; Leo Whittaker, his riding mechanic, and Johnny Hannon, Norristown, Pa., known as the eastern dirt track champion.

Oscar Reeves, Indianapolis, Harrison's riding mechanic, was seriously injured when Hannon's car went out of control at the third turn while going 85 miles an hour.

Stubblefield late yesterday had completed six of the ten laps in the 25-mile qualifying run when his car skidded on the south-west turn and leaped the retaining wall to wind up a mass of wreckage. Experts were unable to learn what caused the skid, which occurred when the car was doing about 115 miles an hour.

The veteran pilot and Whittaker, tossed clear, died on the way to a hospital.

Undaunted by one of the worst crash tolls in the history of the speedway event, a dozen other drivers were preparing for qualifying trials today. Fourteen have made the grade to date, three qualifying yesterday.

Others Qualify
Egbert Stapp, Los Angeles, qualified with an average speed of 116.736; George Connor, San Bernardino, Calif., 114.321, and A. B. Litz of Dubois, Pa., 114.488.

LITTLE IS VICTOR

ST. ANNE'S-ON-SEA, May 22—Swamping all opposition, W. Lawson Little, Jr., of California strode through the British amateur golf championship with giant strides today, eliminating formidable J. P. Zacharias 4 and 3 in their third round match.

The heavy-set Californian, seeking to retain his title against an impressive field, led a parade of American contestants, with T. Sutherland, Jr., of Piping Rock, Long Island, being the only Yankee casualty of the morning. He lost out to Eric Fiddian, veteran Britisher, 2 and 1.

GOLF FACTS

ALEX MORRISON says:
At this time of the year many scores are ruined by bumpy putting greens. Even the shortest of putts can miss the hole, due to an uneven surface near the cup.

This roughness in most cases is a condition that can't be helped. The greenkeepers have to nurse the putting surfaces at the start of the season. They must be careful about rolling. Rolling the greens too soon can spoil them for the entire season.

In a short time though, the surfaces will be smooth so that your putts will run true. They'll go exactly where you send them. If you're entitled to sink them, they'll drop, and your scores will benefit accordingly. Be patient and try to allow for a condition that is unavoidable.

BUCK ATHLETES BUSY THIS WEEK

COLUMBUS, May 22—Athletes at Ohio State university rushed through their classroom paces today preparing for the last real busy week-end of the athletic season.

Baseball, tennis, track, golf and polo teams of the university will see action Friday and Saturday.

The polo squad will entrain for its game with Illinois tomorrow and the tennis team will leave for Northwestern to start the Western conference net championships.

The Scarlet and Gray diamond squad will continue the series of baseball games started two years ago at Morgantown, W. Va. Two games will be played against West Virginia.

Jesse Owens, Ohio's ebony flash, will lead the track contingent to Ann Arbor, Mich., where the Bucks will strive to carry off Western Conference track and field honors.

Owens, who has blasted records right and left during the current campaign, is expected to send marks by the boards in the 100 and 220-yard dashes, low hurdles and the broad jump during the conference meet.

170 POUND JAP TO FACE GIGANTIC FOE

LOS ANGELES, May 22—Wrestling fans today anticipated a freak bout—one between Man Mountain Dean, the 317 pound ex-Brooklyn "traffic cop," and Kimo Kudo, 170 pound Japanese, tonight at the international tournament in Olympic auditorium.

Strangely, Kudo was favored to win.

"He won't stay in one place long enough for the slow moving Man Mountain to make a three-point landing on him," exclaimed backers of the Nipponese.

Other bouts tonight include one between the old maestro Ed "Strangler" Lewis and Marin Plesina; between Ernie Dusek, the tournament's leading villain, and Hans Kamphor; and between Hans Steinke of Germany and Vincent Lopez of Moscow, Idaho.

STOOGES CLUB HANDLES

TICKETS FOR 'PARK DANCE'

The Stooze club, one of Circleville's newest but most active organizations, has undertaken the task of handling the ticket sale for the "City Park Dance" to be held in Memorial hall as a climax to the drive for park funds June 5.

Miss Ann Bennett, chairman of the dance committee, met with the Stooze club members Tuesday evening at the George Roth home at which time the club voted to handle the tickets.

Dancing will be from 9:30 to 1:30 with Harold "Red" Calver and his Cavaliers providing music.

The dance committee includes Miss Bennett, Mrs. Paul Adkins, Miss Helen Hitler and Mrs. Max Friedman.

CONSERVATION LEAGUE

HAS INTERESTING MEETING

Alpha Circle, local chapter of the Child Conservation League of America, held another interesting meeting Tuesday afternoon. The gathering was in the trustees' room of Memorial hall where all future meetings will be held.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Clark Will, at which Mrs. E. I. Gephart, secretary, read the minutes of the previous meeting. Eighteen members including Mrs. Delos Marcy, a new member, answered the roll call.

After the regular business session the meeting was turned over to Mrs. Mark Armstrong in charge of the program which included:

Two papers by Mrs. Gephart on "Anger" and "Exhibition of Anger Between Parents and Evil Effects Upon the Child."

"How Best to Overcome Fear in the Child by Reason," by Mrs. Armstrong.

"Distinguishing Between Bad Temper and Reasonable Anger," by Mrs. Lester H. Coate.

Miss Mary Wilder, librarian, made an interesting talk in which she explained a display of books now in the trustees' room. The books pertain to child life and include a number of books of interest to mothers.

The public is invited to inspect this book display Wednesday, Thursday or Friday.

MRS. GIVEN ENTERTAINS

AT EVENING BRIDGE

Mrs. Bishop Given, S. Court-st., was hostess at an informal evening bridge party, Tuesday evening, at her home. Guests at the enjoyable affair included members of her club and a few additional friends.

Contract bridge was in play at three tables and prizes were awarded Mrs. Joseph Burns and Mrs. Sterling Lamb club members, and Mrs. Neil Barton, a guest.

Spring flowers decorated the home and centered the small tables for the delicious lunch served later in the evening.

Guests beside the club members included Mrs. Dwight Steele, Mrs. Barton, Mrs. Melvin Yates, Mrs. Charles Blundell, Mrs. Barton Deming, Mrs. Donald H. Watt, Mrs. Carl Snider and Mrs. Virgil Cress.

AT WARD HOME

At its regular meeting, Tuesday evening, at the home of Robert Ward, E. Mill-st., the Young People's Branch of the Women's Christian Temperance union elected officers for the coming year.

Evelyn Ward was named president; Franklin Blagg, vice president, and Harriett McGath, secretary-treasurer.

The convention to be held June 23 was discussed.

A short program followed and refreshments were served by Robert and Evelyn Ward.

John Maxey, student at Christian Normal Institute at Grayson, Ky., came Tuesday for a visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. Tibbs Maxey, E. Main-st.

SPANISH ROMEO CROSSES OCEAN

NATAL, Brazil, May 22—Having safely hopped the Mediterranean and the Atlantic, Juan Ignacio Pombo, Spanish "air romeo," intends to brook no delay in getting to his lady love in Mexico City.

He inspected and refueled, his plane, named after Santander, Spain, where he first wooed Elena Rivero, preparatory for an early start on the next leg of his perilous love jaunt.

Pombo said he had no difficulty in his 15-hour flight from Bahia, West Africa, except for clouds on the last part of the journey. He had favorable winds all the way.

MEXICO CITY, May 22—Mexico City is planning a great welcome for Juan Ignacio Pombo, 21 year old Spanish flyer, when he arrives here, but the most thrilled of all is his 19 year old fiancée, Elena Rivero.

Senorita Rivero proclaimed, when she heard Pombo had safely crossed the Atlantic, that she was "enchanted."

But she revealed that she had been worried all the while for she never thought Pombo would take up her challenge to fly here from Spain.

"It was only to get a laugh that I dared him to do it," she said.

Mr. and Mrs. Clinger Rummel and family, E. Main-st., left for Lancaster, Pa., Wednesday morning, to make their future home.

PRETTY WORK

HERE IS AN interesting hand sent in by Mrs. G. R. Wilson, Glens Falls, N. Y. Although the bidding was unusual, South finally arrived at the best call of 3-No Trumps.

The opening lead was the 5 of hearts. North and South alone are vulnerable. East has doubled, and both he and declarer should use what appears to them to be the best strategy. How many tricks can South win against the best subsequent defense of East, whose double renders him the defenders' captain.

| | | | |
|------------|-------------|---------|------------|
| ♠ 5 3 | ♥ 8 6 2 | ♦ 4 3 | ♣ A 10 9 4 |
| ♠ 10 8 7 5 | ♥ 6 4 3 | ♦ K 9 3 | ♣ A K 9 |
| ♠ 10 6 4 | ♥ A 7 4 | ♦ A 7 4 | ♣ Q 5 |
| ♠ J 8 3 2 | ♥ K Q 7 | ♦ J 8 | ♣ Q 10 6 5 |
| | ♥ Q J 2 | ♥ 4 3 | |
| | ♥ A J 8 7 2 | ♥ 7 | |
| | ♥ K 9 | ♥ 8 7 | |

Win the first trick with East's K of hearts. His best chance to defeat the contract is to employ his high honors to establish clubs. Have him lead back his lowest club. South's K will win. To go game South must win two tricks in each black suit and five diamonds, or the substitution of a heart trick for one of the spade tricks. Play the hand any way you like. Leading a high spade from the short end of that suit is the most normal method of offense. Naturally East will not win the first spade trick, but when the K is followed by the Q it is probable that East will take his Ace of spades, as he has that suit stopped again. If East refuses the second spade trick, waiting for South to lead a third round of spades, South can force East into the lead with the Ace of hearts, by leading the Q of hearts. Suppose that East puts up his Ace of spades when South leads the second high honor from his hand. He will clear clubs by leading the 6 of that suit. West's J will force dummy's Ace, leaving the suit established for East, who still has entry in his Ace of hearts.

Start running off five diamond tricks. At the end of the third round of that suit the players will hold as shown below.

Here is a 5-card problem, with South in the lead and bound to win two tricks in diamonds and the J of spades, let East do what he likes. Lead next to the last diamond and let go one of dummy's hearts. East must let go a club, to prevent dummy's spades from both becoming good. Lead the last diamond and let go dummy's last heart. If East lets go his Ace of hearts both declarer's hearts become good and 5-odd will be made. East can assure himself a single trick in clubs, by letting go one of his spades, or he can make certain of a single spade trick, by letting go his good club. In any event the declarer should win 4-odd.

Washington Merry-go-round

formed some astute maneuvering in the Senate and got his bill through like a breeze. But in the other end of the Capitol, it got blocked in the House Military Affairs Committee.

Most significant is the fact that chief blockers are representatives of the coal and power interests, with Andrew J. May, Kentucky Democrat, representing the first; and Donald H. McLean, New Jersey Republican, the second.

In the secrecy of the committee room May makes no bones about the nature of his opposition.

"I represent a coal district," he declared, "and the TVA is not helping it any."

Publicly, white-haired John McSwain, Chairman of the House Committee, says he is confident the bill will be approved. But privately, he admits that unless the President is able to exert enough personal pressure on the Democratic recalcitrants, the bill is doomed.

Good Actor

Senator Joe Guffey and Representative Pat Boland, Democratic whip of the House, have been carrying on a bitter feud over Pennsylvania patronage. Exchanges between them have been hot and sulphuric.

But not in public. Then it is a different story.

The other day Boland was talking to friends on the steps of the Capitol when Guffey passed by. The two men greeted each other like long lost brothers.

"Pat, old man, how are you?" crooned Guffey.

"Fine, Joe, how are you?"

After some further amenities, Guffey departed. Whereupon Boland turned to his friends, remarked with much feeling: "Huh, he can't put anything over on me. I guess I can be just as smooth as he if I want to."

ATHLETE REFUSES JOB WITH DAVEY

COLUMBUS, May 22—John E. Halliday, Jr., Gallipolis, attaché in the governor's office, today declined an appointment as executive secretary to Gov. Martin L. Davey because of his desire to resume private law practice as soon as the pressure of the legislative session is relieved.

The post has been vacant since Dan W. Duffy resigned to become a Cleveland municipal judge. Charles Leasure, Zanesville, unsuccessful candidate for congressman-at-large last fall, and State Sen. John Hunter (D) Toledo, are being mentioned as possible appointees.

11 Youthful Kentuckians Entertain High Students

By GEORGE AMMER

Differing from the usual discourses on such topics, a group of eleven young Kentuckians presented a drama to illustrate life in the mountain regions Tuesday before an eager and attentive audience of high school students.

Headed by Dan Martin, a graduate of the Caney Creek Junior college, and including students representing all divisions of the school, this group for the past eight weeks has been on a goodwill tour through seven states endeavoring to bring before their audiences a more true and concise picture of the modes of living in the remote regions of the "Blue Grass State."

The play presented pointed out the need in this section of the country for professional training, which was the reason this mountain institution the Caney Creek school, was founded. Divisions of this school range from the first grade through Junior college. Students entering the school, the director of the troupe stated, pledge themselves, after they have received their training, to return to their native communities and use their knowledge for the betterment of the section from which they came.

Professions for which members of this group are training include law, medicine, engineering and teaching.

The school is grateful to Ed Sensesbrenner who made the arrangements for the program.

The Home - Economics class under the direction of Miss Gertrude Pignman prepared a luncheon for the entertainers.

The program, following the theme of the advantages of compulsory education in the more advanced communities as compared with conditions in the more remote sections, was moving, gripping.

The acting was splendid and certainly surprised the spectators by being different from what they expected.

REASON TO GO STRAIGHT

IN 1931 a masked bandit held up a grocery in Hammond, Ind. The victims of the robbery identified Edward Singleton, a war veteran and house painter, as the bandit and he was sentenced to Michigan City penitentiary, where he remained until a month ago. In March of this year a 23-year-old salesman of Hammond confessed the crime.

In a court at Crown Point, a few days ago, the true culprit, Ralph Harwood, appeared for sentence and as the court was about to pronounce it, Singleton, a month out of prison, stepped to the bar. "Your Honor," he said, "this young man isn't a real criminal. He has gone straight since the robbery. I served four years in prison for that crime. Let that be enough. I bear no grudge against Harwood. I am pleading that you show clemency." Harwood's sentence was suspended.

Whatever one may think of the logic of the plea, it is one of the most touching incidents we have come upon in the news in a long time. Surely, greater love hath no man than that he allow compassion efface the memory of four years' purgatory in prison and the present necessity of assembling the ruins of a career. If ever a man was under moral compulsion to give society the best that is in him it is one, like Harwood, whose debt to it has been assumed by another who feels no enmity on that account, but on the contrary affirms his faith in the one responsible for his cruel plight.

We question the accuracy of the of the conclusion that the senator from Louisiana is more irritating than the seven years' itch. He is elected for only six years.

FORMULA FOR PEACE

RELIVING to a student who had inquired how undergraduates might work effectively for international peace, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, declared that "mere emotional outbursts and declarations against war and against participation in war are quite futile." The practical course, in his opinion, is to support American adherence to the world court.

But here Dr. Butler is also, unrealistic. However admirable an intention the world court may be for settling minor differences, it falls to reach the fundamental causes of war which lie at present primarily in economic regions. So long as nations deprive each other of the means of livelihood through extreme and foolish trade restrictions, the world is bound to continue in unstable equilibrium.

Perhaps he should say to his inquiring student: "Young man, do not expect any world court to open markets to Germany or to force the United States to stop ruining China by draining it of its silver. If you really want to promote peace start at home by using your influence for saner tariff and monetary policies."

HEALTH IS GOOD BUSINESS

MEN and women live longer now than did these of half a century ago. The life span has been increased 17 years. The gain is the result of knowledge.

Sickness and death are tragedies in the experience of individuals, but from the point of view of the interests of the community, they are just plain bad business. The service of every able-bodied man to society as a whole has a certain definite cash value. If he lives and keeps well he ought to be counted upon to contribute to the wealth of the community.

This is one justification for spending money collected from the public to protect public health. It is community insurance. Millions are wasted every year, because persons are laid up by sickness.

It is the business of organized society to protect itself against attacks of disease which grow out of bad living conditions. Public money is well and justifiably spent in preventing the accumulation of filth, in providing a safe water supply, in enforcing quarantine regulations, in spreading health information, in providing clinics for the treatment of those unable to secure medical services at their private expenses.

A "problem child" is an urchin with a flat wheel on his roller skates.

If only you could save a dollar once for all instead of having to do it over every day.

Our domestic limburger, says an authority on the subject, is now the equal of any on earth. Whether or not this is progress is all a matter of personal opinion.

Looking Back In Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

Mrs. Ward Robinson, winner of the Christian Herald's Pentecostal Hymn contest, was honored at a social meeting of the Papyrus club, Circleville's women writers, at which time Mrs. Edson Crites sang the prize winning hymn. The author was sent a radio message of congratulation from station WLW.

The junior-senior banquet of Atlanta high school was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Morris.

The freshman class of Circleville high school enjoyed a picnic at Dewey park.

15 YEARS AGO

A large audience enjoyed several farm talks and splendid music at a meeting of the Lutheran Brotherhood. A Williams-per quartet, composed of Daniel Adkins, Russell McDell, R. S. Walsman and Lee Luellen, sang several numbers.

Major John I. Throckmorton, 89, prominent attorney, died at his home in Clarksburg. He was well known throughout this section of the state and had many friends in Circleville.

Harry Willis went to Sandusky to take a training course at the Matthews electric light plant, manufacturers of dynamos for electric light service for country homes.

25 YEARS AGO

The pastor and official members of the Methodist Episcopal church gave a public reception on the church parlors. The entire church was open for inspection.

Tom Duffy was appointed flagman at the Court-st crossing of the C. & M. V. railroad, and M. V. B. Green was employed by the Norfolk & Western as watchman at the Main-st crossing.

The home of M. L. Compton, four miles east of town on the Stoutsville pike, was struck by lightning, the bolt tearing off part of the roof, demolishing a chimney and breaking all the glass in the windows of the second story. The heat was so intense that all the soldering in the eave spouting was melted. Members of the family did not feel the shock, yet neighbors a quarter of a mile away were stunned.

STORMY LOVE

A YOUNG NAVY MAN'S ROMANCE BELLE BURNS GROMER

READ THIS FIRST:

After bidding goodby in a huff to his childhood sweetheart, Janice Edging, who is sailing for the United States where her father, Captain Edging, has been assigned to Puget Sound Navy Yard, carefree Lieutenant Valentine Preston, attached to a gunboat in China, sees an attractive girl in a passing ricksha on the streets of Shanghai. He recognizes her as the same girl who had defied his visit to Janice's liner in the harbor by taking the last sampan in sight from the pier. Following in another ricksha, both alight at the same hotel. They become engaged in conversation, have a cocktail together and Val learns she is from South Carolina. Later he accuses himself and goes to the bar alone. (NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 8

FROM the time he could walk Val remembered standing protectively beside his fragile little mother in hotel bedrooms to hear his naval-officer father's charge, "Take good care of Mommie, son, until Dad comes home again." He had adored the small, dependent mother whose fingers, like his own, could conjure magic harmonies from a piano. She had died when he was eight but he had never forgotten her; a few years later his Dad, too, had slipped away. After that, more boarding schools; at seventeen an appointment to the Naval Academy, and since graduation six years ago, a cubbyhole room aboard various battleships of the U. S. N.

Which left him here drinking by himself! A hell of a note! The persistent thought of Kent Townley came to torment him. That bird would not be lonely tonight. Just about now he'd be meeting Jan and the Captain in the lounge, they would dine together, and later he and Jan would walk on deck in the moonlight. With Jan in his thoughts, hadn't he watched the silver crescent grow all the voyage down-river?

He stared along the bar with disillusioned eyes. A dull, uninteresting crowd here. He hadn't wanted the satisfaction of getting a kick from his drinks. In the midst of laughter and music he felt infinitely lonely and depressed. He decided suddenly to shove off for the club; it was sure to be livelier than this morgue; and since he was bound to stir up excitement of one sort or another before the night was over, he supposed he might as well go top-side and change into dinner clothes.

Coming out into the lounge again, he was surprised to see the girl still sitting where he had left her, and as he stood watching the small figure he noted that although the aura of smart sophistication still persisted, yet she appeared a bit youthful and forlorn. Since he must pass close to the corner she occupied, it seemed only decent to pause for a word.

"It is quieter than usual here this evening," he said politely. "The Cathay is attracting the tea crowd this week, I suppose."

Started, she looked up with such an eager little smile that he was struck anew by that fleeting wistfulness. He knew what it meant to be depressed; it touched him to see melancholy in those velvety dark eyes.

He dropped suddenly into the chair facing her to demand, "Look here, is something wrong? Is there any way I can help?"

There was a pause before she answered. She stared down at the lovers on the enameled cigarette case and ran a crimson nail up and down along the lid. Finally she asked softly, "How can a—a lonely person make the most of her first—and perhaps last—evening of freedom?"

For a moment he was taken aback but presently a smile twitched at the corner of his good-looking mouth.

Which left him here drinking by himself.

And so the charming little lady had a game after all. He must investigate. He slipped to the edge of the bar, his body leaning forward, his hands between his knees. "Have you any good ideas of your own on this subject?" he asked. He wondered who and what she was. He couldn't be quite sure, but now he was interested.

The girl countered with her own question. "You are an officer, aren't you? I saw your navy ring when you put the coin in the beggar baby's shoe."

"I'm Valentine Preston, a lieutenant attached to the gunboat Panay of the Yangtze Patrol."

"My name is Lia Garenne."

He had heard the surname before, but where he could not for the life of him recall. "French?" he asked. "French Huguenot a long way back." Her voice was musical and slow. She touched the setting of his ring with a tiny finger. "I've seen lots of Navy officers in Charleston," she told him. "But I've never been allowed to know any."

"What do you mean, 'not allowed'?" he demanded indignantly. There was a pause before she answered. "You see, I—I am a companion to an old woman who permits me to have my friends. She is not very kind to me." He liked her Southern drawl, guileless of the letter "r." His mother had had an accent like that. The girl went on, "We live in an old house on the Ashley, very dreary and lonely. Sometimes, when we have traveled, but she never lets me have any fun. Tonight is the first time I—I have been free to do as I pleased—"

she stared away, and her red mouth quivered childishly. The story didn't hold together, of course. The leopard coat, the gold cigarette case, the expensive French clothes put her out of the misbegotten companion class. He wondered how old she was and came to the conclusion she must be twenty-three or four. Just another pretty little lady looking for adventure and starting some excitement with a trumped-up story. Well, whatever her purpose, it appeared an interesting evening by her.

"Look here," he said, "I'm a little tight and later on there is an excellent chance I'll be a little tighter. However, if you care to dine and dance with me I can promise I shall widely read by mid-western financiers and investors.

"I don't split rails any more," said Mr. Johnson, "but I get a lot of pleasure out of working in my vegetable garden. I don't believe in 'all work and no play,' but believe all should be able to enjoy some sort of recreation in order to be better fitted for his regular job."

So if you want to take the day off and go fishing, you have a perfectly good excuse—you can work better the next day.

Editorial Of The Day

WHERE RELIEF FAILS

(Cincinnati Enquirer)

Captain John Smith believed in work. He thought the colony at Jamestown would never put Virginia on the map unless everybody labored, cleared the forest, planted corn, built mills, dug wells, and in these ways started the upbuilding of civilization. Most of the colonists thought the thing to do was to live on the food brought from England, and to loaf. Then came down Captain John Smith's heavy hand. "He who will not work, unless he is disabled by illness, shall not eat." That was his dictum, and he meant it.

Then it was that Jamestown really made a start. It was hard work that planted Virginia in the wilderness. This has been our history from the beginning. The ax and the plow, backed by the rifle, conquered America and made the United States what it is today.

We have a host of men who are idle because there is no work for them. They must be fed. Yet we are beginning to have men who resemble these early colonists, their idea is to loaf and have their food given them. For these men work should be made.

Relief that leads men to sit down and lazily fold their hands is failing of its purpose. Every man is expected to help himself as much as lies in his power.

not disgrace you. What do you say?"

Her eyes shining ecstatically, she clasped his small hands. "Oh, I'll accept it," she cried. "I am staying at this hotel and I have the loveliest frock upstairs. May I have time to change?"

Val favored her with a glowing smile. "Good news, Miss Charleston!" His erect young body swung to its feet. "I was on my way up to get into dinner clothes when I caught sight of you here. Shall we meet in the lounge in three-quarters of an hour?"

After she had disappeared in the lift Val crossed the lobby and asked a guarded question or two at the desk. When he ascended to his own room he wore an amused grin. Nothing more was known of Miss Lia Garenne than that she had arrived at the Astor just before mid-day. But there was no Gorgon-like employer in the office; on the contrary, the young lady was quite alone!

While the room cooler fetched towels and ran the water for his bath Val flung out of his clothes. The world looked merry and bright once more. Doing Shanghai tonight with Miss Lia Garenne might prove plenty interesting.

Stretching his bronze young body, he cast an appreciative eye over the easy chairs, the luxurious bed, and the flowered chintzes that made his room in the Astor a pleasant contrast to his dreary cubby-hole aboard the Panay. Some men, he thought, lived all their lives surrounded by just such comforts as these; and he wondered for the thousandth time what the hell a fellow saw in the navy and why he had let himself in for it. Today Brad had accused him of looking for the soft jobs. And why not? When he had chosen a navy career it had been with the resolve that it should never get its claws into him if he could prevent it. Look what it had done to his parents! Because his mother would not be separated from his father, she had died of cholera in Hankow's blistering summer heat. A few years later his dad's life had been snuffed out from overfatigue and pneumonia, contracted from too long hours on the open bridge on an old type cruiser as he battled to bring her safely through a slashing North Atlantic blizzard.

In the crusades, what was the name of the leader of the Saracen troops opposing those of Richard Cœur de Lion?

What Italian noble family, members of which were great patrons of the arts, ruled Florence during Renaissance times?

What did Guy Fawkes try to do?

Correctly Spaking—A gerund phrase should not introduce a sentence or clause unless it logically modifies the subject of the sentence or clause.

Words of Wisdom

For to me every sort of peace with the citizens seemed to be of more service than civil war.—Cicero.

Persons Born on This Day

Persons born on this day are quick and hasty in speech, and sometimes cruel and unjust in judgment and criticism.

Answers to Foregoing Questions
1. Saladin, Sultan of Egypt.
2. The Medici family.
3. To blow up the English houses of parliament, Nov. 5, 1605.

The affair sometimes is called "The Gun-powder Plot."

Dinner Stories

WAS HE SURPRISED? School children in Oklahoma City were rehearsing a play in which a bantam hen plays a part. The script of the play calls for a speech which is given by Robert Moore ending in a short, sharp demand, "Lay," made to the hen by the youthful actor. Whereupon Robert reaches under the bantam and withdraws a golden egg. At a rehearsal recently Robert reached under the bantam as usual and came out with a sure enough egg, just laid and still warm.

THEATRES

AT THE CLIFTONA

Douglas Fairbank's fans will welcome the agile star back to the Cliftona Theatre today in one of those colorful swashbuckling roles with which he is generally identified. The picture is London Films' "The Private Life of Don Juan," which offers the dashing Doug an opportunity to wear more colorful costumes and achieve more daring feats than ever before.

The intriguingly lovely Merle Oberon, who is perhaps the most talked about and glamorous new personality in the film world, is seen opposite Doug as Pepilia, the Spanish dancer; Benita Hume plays his wife, while Binnie Barnes, Joan Gardner, Patricia Hillard and Princess Natalie Paley represent a few of the many other amorous episodes in Don Juan's romantic career.

Lavishly mounted, "The Private Life of Don Juan" boasts the largest and most pretentious sets ever built in England and hundreds of breath-takingly beautiful costumes designed by Oliver Messel. The film is released through United Artists.

AT THE GRAND

To theatregoers who are fed up on sex triangles, gang wars, racing thrillers, and other threadbare movie plots, it should be welcome news to hear that the Columbia production, "No Greater Glory," is to be shown at the Grand Theatre.

The screen story is based on Ferenc Molnar's novel, "Paul Street Boys." It deals with a cross-section of life, which reflects the author's intimacy with the part of Budapest, Hungary, that is its setting. It might as well be Boston, however, or Buenos Aires, England or Japan, so far as the university of its appeal is concerned.

AT THE CIRCLE

Ralph Forbes, star of "Rescue Squad" now playing at the Circle Theatre, made his first screen hit as one of the three brothers in "Beau Geste," the Herbert Brenson sensation of a few years ago.

Forbes had come to the United States from England to play in the stage production of "Havoc." His work in this play and in several William A. Brady productions established him as a Broadway favorite, and led to his signing by Brenson for "Beau Geste."

Words Found by Literati Long Known to Physicians

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE OTHER evening I spent with a group of learned and literary gentlemen who were preening themselves on having discovered some new words. They make their living by words, so it is part of the game to trillate the public by springing unfamiliar results of research on them. The curious thing was they were nearly all medical words.

Mr. Alexander Woolcott has unearthed "estivate." He could hardly wait until the next night when, in his mellifluous tenor, he would float that moral over the air into the ears of a million radio devotees.

Mr. Vincent Starrett had run across "borborygm." He rolled it under his tongue. He called attention to its marvelous qualities as a pure piece of pronunciation. Yet "borborygm" has been familiar to me since long before I can remember, and its connotations have robbed it of all sense of beauty.

Mr. Noel Coward was enthralled with "argyria." And one must admit that is a handsome word, either written or pronounced.

Poems That Live

THE OLD STOIC
Riches I hold in light esteem,
And love I laugh to scorn;
And lust of fame was but a dream,
That vanished with the morn:

And if I pray, the only prayer
That moves my lips for me
Is, "Leave the heart that now I bear,
And give me liberty!"

Yes, as the swift days near their goal,
'Tis all that I implore;
In life and death a childless soul,
With courage to endure.

OUR YESTERDAYS When an Article About a Sunset Gave "Sunset" Cox His Nickname

What a stormful sunset was that of last night! How glorious the storm and how splendid the setting of the sun! We do not remember ever to have seen the like on our round globe. The scene opened in the west, with a whole horizon full of golden impenetrating luster, which colored the foliage and brightened every object in its own rich dyes. The colors grew deeper and richer, until the golden luster was transformed into a storm-cloud, full of finest lightning, which leaped in dazzling zigzags all around and over the city. The wind arose with fury, the slender shrubs and quaint trees made obeisance to its majesty. Some even snapped before its fierce grasp. The strawbells and grass plots "turned up their whites" as the Zephyrus mowed the rain came, and the pools formed, and the gutters hissed, and the thunder roared grandly, and the fire-bells rang with hearty chorus. The south and east received the cyclone's fury, and the west all at once brightened with a long, polished aureole, worthy of a Sicilian sky. Presently the form of a belated

Samuel S. (Sunset) Cox; part of his famous article; statue of Cox. IT ISN'T ALWAYS necessary to build a bridge, become a dictator or paint a picture to win fame. One man became famous merely because he wrote an article about a sunset. He was Samuel S. Cox, a politician and writer, who was known widely during his adult life as "Sunset" Cox as a result of his article. The story Cox wrote on the sunset, a florid description of nature's beauty, was published in the Ohio Statesman at Columbus, O., on May 19, 1853, when he was only 29. "A Great Old Sunset" was the title of the article. It fastened upon Cox a nickname which clung to him throughout his career as a member of congress from Ohio and New York.

What Notable Women Are Wearing Now

It's what the notable women wear, not what the fashion designers proffer, that makes the styles. Here the trend of the mode is exemplified by (l. to r.) Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Boettiger, daughter of the President, shown at the races; Grace Moore, opera-movie singer, and Katharine Cornell, actress. The latter two were snapped sailing for Europe. Note that all three favor the small hat, and that Mrs. Boettiger is taking no heed of Paris' attempt to lengthen skirts. (Central Press)

JANE ADDAMS, WORLD PEACE LEADER, DIES

Internal Cancer Fatal to Aged Woman; Body Lying In Home She Founded

CHICAGO, May 22—In the famous Hull house settlement which she founded the body of Miss Jane Addams lay today as a final tribute to the stout-hearted friend of the underprivileged and advocate of world peace.

Until 2 p. m. tomorrow, when simple denominational services will be held in Hull house court the body of Miss Addams will lie at rest in Bower hall for friends to view. Following the funeral services Miss Addams' body will be taken to her birthplace at Cedarville, Ill.

Death claimed the noted social worker last evening at 6:15 o'clock in Passavant hospital where she underwent an operation last Saturday to relieve an abdominal obstruction. Before she lapsed into a coma earlier in the day Miss Addams told her nephew, James Weber Linn:

"I think I have done my work and I am satisfied. If the time has come I am ready."

Suffered Cancer

With her death doctors revealed that Miss Addams was suffering from an internal cancer that would have proved fatal within the short span of a few months had she survived the operation. She had not been informed although the cancer first was found when the social worker underwent an operation for tumor at Baltimore in 1931.

Despite her 74 years Miss Addams displayed her famous "zeal for life" by putting up a valiant fight for recovery until a sudden reversal yesterday caused her to sink rapidly.

Dr. Charles A. Elliott, one of the three attending physicians, said Miss Addams continued in a deep sleep and coma all through the day and until death set in.

Flowers Fill Room

Truck loads of flowers, sent by friends and admirers in all parts of the country, lined the room where the humanitarian's body lay. Crowding the room were civic leaders and the social leaders and the social elite mingling with the women and children settlement house residents to whom Miss Addams had devoted her life.

One of the first telegrams expressing grief at Miss Addams' death came from Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

and future expenditures for the veterans, would run the total bill up to $13,500,000,000 by 1945, he said, or a sum equal to more than three-fourths of the total cost of the war.

The Patman bill, he noted, set forth three principal reasons for cash payment of the veterans' certificates, (1) that it will increase the purchasing power of millions of citizens, (2) that it will provide relief for many in need, and (3) it will lighten the relief burden of cities, counties and states.

While it is undeniably true, he admitted, that payment would result in expansion of retail trade, retail business already is good, comparing favorably with pre-depression figures. The proposed issue of treasury notes would quickly return to the banks, he argued, and the banks already have ample credit facilities.

Not Justify Claims

"The ultimate effect of this bill," he said, "will not in the long run justify the expectations that have been granted generous benefits through compensations, insurance, have been raised by those who argue for it."

As for the relief angle, he asserted congress has just appropriated $4,880,000,000 for relief purposes, and in this the veterans will share along with other citizens.

"I hold," he said, "that an able-bodied citizen, because he wore a uniform and for no other reason, should be accorded no treatment different from that accorded to other citizens who did not wear a uniform during the World war.

The failure of congress to provide taxes to pay the bonus would alone warrant disapproval of the bill, he said.

The message was one of the lengthiest Mr. Roosevelt has submitted to congress. He concluded it on a personal note by saying he realized the disappointment his veto will occasion to thousands. But he held he had a moral obligation to the whole country.

"I cannot swerve from this moral obligation," he asserted.

He was reminded, he said, of the millions who performed other than military service during the war, of the five million families now in need, and of the future.

"Welfare of Nation"

"I believe," he concluded, "the welfare of the nation, as well as the future welfare of the veterans, wholly justifies my disapproval of this measure."

bill out was scheduled for Tuesday but so many members failed to answer Chairman Julian Schweller's call for a special meeting that he postponed it until this afternoon.

The bill provides for an appropriation of $3,000,000 for parochial schools and $2,000,000 for denominational colleges. In some quarters, the belief was expressed that the administration has finally rounded up the 12 votes necessary to put the measure on the floor. Whether the house will pass the bill, if it is reported out, was a matter of considerable speculation.

Among the measures awaiting final action tomorrow were the Traxler $48,000,000 foundation school bill, the $15,000,000 poor relief bond bill, the $96,000,000 general appropriations bill, the Waldvogel liquor bill, the Davey government reorganization measure, and the Beaver-Mahoning canal bill.

them what to do and when to do it."

The speaker raised pertinent questions about individual effort the thing that has made the greatest nation the world has ever known. He argued from history and from reason that the safety and security of our government lie in individual effort unhampered by circumstances or by government.

"Blot out ten names and you blot out all English literature; destroy 20 names and you destroy inventions that have made us great; eliminate two dozen names and you eliminate music; wipe out 25 names and you wipe out the automobile industry. The 50,000 individuals who have contributed to science, invention, industry, music, art and progress are more important than the fifty million who make no contribution to these fields," Mr. Fess said.

"What we need," he went on, "is more attention to the leadership of these few men, as individuals, rather than the catering to the masses who can not make a lasting contribution to the productive fields of human progress."

Effort Is Backbone

The speaker insisted that individual effort is the backbone of progress and stability. "Destroy that and you destroy civilization," he said.

Senator Fess closed with an appeal for the theory that there is a chance for everybody and an appeal to the young man and woman, particularly, to take advantage of that chance to make a contribution to self and to society by taking advantage of the many chances offered everywhere if only they will think and work.

The speaker was introduced by M. C. Warren, Pickaway-twp superintendent, who paid a glowing tribute to the man who served for a long while in the U. S. senate. Mr. Warren in presenting Senator Fess said: "I present him to you as a great teacher, a matchless orator, a profound scholar, a friend and a gentleman."

The large Pickaway-twp auditorium was filled with many persons standing. All were attentive to the last word.

At the close of the exercises Fred Dudleson, president of the senior class, presented Edward A. Fries, principal of the high school for the past two years, a beautiful billfold and key holder. The entire high school made the present in token of their appreciation. Mr. Fries asked to be relieved of further duties in the school.

The entire commencement service was artistic with splendid music having an important part.

McNary Secretly Suggests Compromise of 15 Month On Extension of NRA

WASHINGTON — The embattled Senate and House Democratic floor leaders have received from a Republican source a plan for the amicable solution of their bitter quarrel over the extension of the NRA. Charley McNary, astute Senate Republican floor leader, has proposed that they split the difference.

The Senate leaders want the NRA's life limited to eight months. The House chiefs, under the spurring of the President and Richberg, are holding out for two years.

McNary has secretly suggested that they compromise on September 1, 1936, a 15-month extension.

Wrong Bottle

Florida's Representative William Sears was making a warm plea before the House Ways and Means Committee for approval of his bill permitting the manufacture of citrus wines and cordials under the same internal revenue taxes as those assessed on California grape wines.

"Gentlemen," he said, "I have with me some samples of citrus wines which will give you an idea of their high quality and mildness."

Sears handed a neerby member of the committee a bottle. The latter sniffed, passed it to his neighbor. Thus the bottle went down the line of committee members each taking a gingerly smell, until it reached Chairman Bob Doughton, rugged North Carolina mountaineer.

Doughton lifted the bottle to his mouth and took a hearty swig. As the crowded room watched him, he suddenly gagged, gasped, coughed violently.

"Say," he demanded when he finally got his breath, "what is this stuff? I thought you said it was wine. Tastes like spirits to me."

Sears hastily examined the bottle. "I'm terribly sorry, Mr. Chairman," he apologized, "I made a mistake. I gave you the wrong bottle. This is a tangerine brandy with a 40 per cent alcohol content."

Share Croppers

On the heels of the 4,000 farmers who "marched" on Washington last week, came another group much less welcome to Henry Wallace and Chester Davis.

They were a delegation of share croppers from Arkansas, Mississippi and Alabama. Victims of the adjustment program. They had no cheers for Wallace or Davis or Hopkins. A meagre handful of men—both white and black—they are picketing government buildings with placards of protest.

Their quarrel with the AAA is that its cotton reduction program has resulted in the eviction of thousands of tenant and share cropper families.

Their quarrel with FERA is that, having been evicted, they are denied relief by local agents if they join a union as a means of protesting against losing their crop.

This pitiful pilgrimage was organized by the Southern Tenant Farmers Union, which claims to have a membership of 6,000 share cropper families, paying dues of 10 cents a month.

They declare that if they don't get satisfaction from Wallace and Hopkins, they will transfer their picketing to the White House.

Coal and Power

The bill to strengthen the powers of the TVA is meeting some hard sledding in the House.

The bill gives the Tennessee Valley Authority, among other things the right to sell power in competition with private companies. Without this approval by Congress, some TVA rosters say the vast project will be completely hamstrung.

For this reason, Senator George Norris, papa of the TVA, per-

WOMAN KILLED IN AUTO CRASH AT CEDAR HILL

Mrs. Willison Spangler, 62, of Tarlton, Dies of Fractured Skull

AUTO TURNS OVER

Funeral Service at M. E. Church Thursday

Crushed beneath an overturned automobile, Mrs. Irene Spangler, 62, wife of Willison Spangler, well known Tarlton resident, was killed almost instantly early Tuesday evening at the crossroads in Cedar Hill, Fairfield-co.

Her husband, who has been a road maintainer for Pickaway-co for about 10 years, and who was driving the car, was slightly injured.

The accident happened, it is reported, when Mr. Spangler became confused at the crossroads in the Fairfield-co village. His Chevrolet struck a culvert and turned over, throwing Mrs. Spangler from the car and turning over on her. Her head was crushed.

Reared in Community

Mrs. Spangler was one of the Tarlton community's best known women. She was born and reared in the Saltcreek-twp village. Her parents were the late William and Isabelle Rose Roberts. She was an active member of the Methodist church.

Besides her husband she is survived by two children, Albert, well known at home, and Ella May, both at home; a sister, Mrs. Mary Trimmer of near East Ringgold, and a brother, Dr. M. Roberts, of Washington, Pa.

Funeral Thursday

The funeral will be Thursday at 2:30 p. m. at the Tarlton Methodist church with Rev. S. C. Elsea officiating with interment in the village cemetery by H. E. Deffenbaugh and Son.

Pall bearers will be Charles Schwin, Charles Wilson, John Morrison, Frank Shride, Arthur Shaffer and Arnold Reichelderfer.

COLUMBUS, May 22

The body of a man found lying on the C. & O. railroad tracks in west Columbus this morning, was identified today by his two sons as James Douglas, 76, of New Holland.

Announcement of the identification of the man, whose mangled body was sighted on the tracks by a railroad engineer, was made by Coroner E. E. Smith after the body had been viewed by James and William Douglas, brothers.

The brothers took charge of the body, announcing that funeral arrangements would be held at the New Holland cemetery on Friday. The elder Douglas was a widower.

PATRIOTIC ORDERS TO GATHER SUNDAY

Circleville's patriotic organization will observe Memorial Sunday, May 26, by attending special services at the Presbyterian church Sunday at 10:15 a. m.

Rev. E. S. Tomsmaier will preach the sermon.

Organizations included in the Memorial Sunday rites are American Legion, auxiliary, Spanish American war veterans, Daughters of Union Veterans and Daughters of the American Revolution.

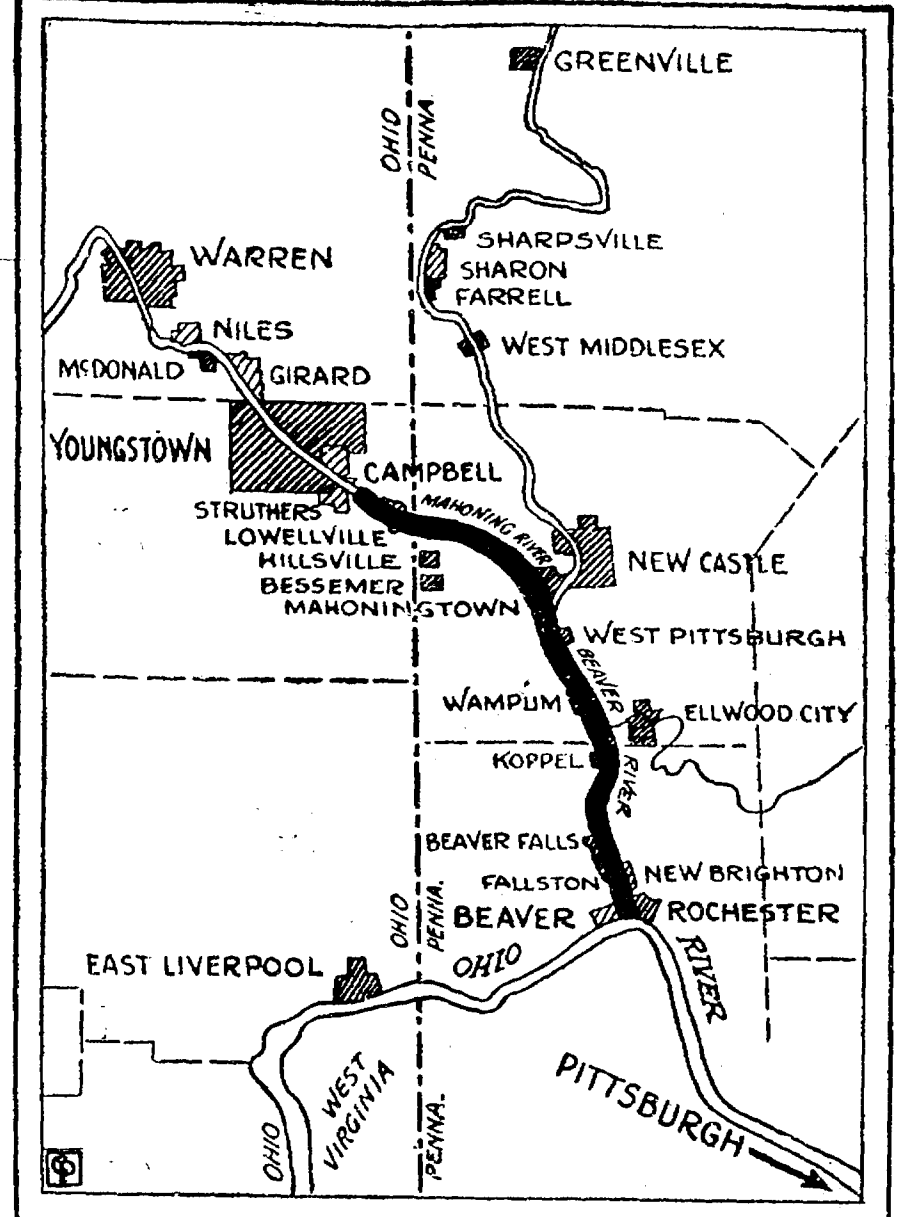

If any person desiring to attend is without transportation, Frank Littleton, commander of the Legion post, should be contacted.

All organizations are to meet at Memorial hall at 10 a. m. to march with the Legion to the church.

HITLER CALLS "WAR BABIES"

Classes of 1914 and 1915 Summoned for Year's Military Service

BERLIN, May 22—Germany's new conscription law, making every able-bodied man and woman in the Reich between the ages of 18 and 45 eligible for wartime service in trench, field, home or factory, was officially inaugurated today when the nation's "war babies" were called up for service.

General Von Reichenau on behalf of war Minister General Von Blomberg, announced that the classes of 1914 and 1915, consisting of young men born while Germany was grappling with the allies on the eastern and western fronts, had been summoned for one year's military and labor service beginning November 1.

Reserve Half Million

The class of 1915 numbers 500,853 and that of 1914 approximately the same, with 55 per cent of each fit for active service, giving Germany an immediate active reserve force of more than 550,000 men.

Von Reichenau announced that men of the classes of 1910 through 1913 will be permitted to serve in the army if they volunteer. Otherwise, he said, they will be called only for a brief period of training.

Conscripts liable to service during the present year have already been registered, it was said.

ALL TEACHERS OF CITY HIRED ANOTHER YEAR

Board Acts on Recommendation of Mr. Fischer; Salaries Same

ALL FOR ONE YEAR

To be Assigned to Positions in August

All teachers in the city school system were re-employed for another year when the board of education met Tuesday evening.

Supt. Frank Fischer recommended their employment and after discussion in which the superintendent and board of education spent considerable time all were offered one-year contracts.

Mr. Fischer said today that he is anticipating no vacancies, expecting all teachers to accept their contracts.

Assigned in August

No drastic changes are planned in the assignment of principals and teachers, the superintendent declared. Teachers will be assigned their grades and schools sometime in August.

Salaries next year will remain practically the same as now in effect. A pay reduction made quite a while ago was restored in recent months.

There are 51 teachers on the city school payroll including Supt. Fischer and High School Principal E. I. Gephart.

AMERICANS TRY DOUBLE SUICIDE

PARIS, May 22—What police declared was a suicide pact was disclosed today when Milton Weil, 64, of New York, and his wife, Henriette, were rushed to the American hospital in a critical condition from veronal poisoning.

Guests at a leading Paris hotel, the Weils left a note, police said, declaring they lost their money in the Wall Street crash of 1929 and went abroad in an effort to recoup their fortunes.

Unsuccessful in their comeback attempt, they decided upon suicide the note said, according to police.

GIRL CONVICTED IN KNIFE DEATH

NEW ORLEANS, La., May 22—Bessie Hill, alias Marion King, 23-year-old night club habituée, today was convicted of manslaughter for the fatal stabbing of her sweetheart, John Irving Pierce, also 23, in the "Nut Club" here on March 22.

The sentence was deferred. The minimum sentence for manslaughter is six years and the maximum is 20 years, with time off for good behavior.

The highlight of the trial came when the defendant took the stand in her own defense and re-created the events leading up to the fatal stabbing.

ROTARY TO FETE BOY GRADUATES

Boy graduates of Circleville high school will be entertained by the Rotary club Thursday evening at 6:30 o'clock at the New American Hotel Coffee shop.

Each member is to entertain one member of the class.

The speaker will be Rev. L. C. Sherburne, of St. Philip's Episcopal church.

Moore With Showboat

Leroy Moore, local guitarist and yodeler who has been broadcasting for the past six weeks over WPAY, Portsmouth, appeared last week with Bryants, well known showboat unit.

He will rejoin the organization May 27 in Cincinnati and will be heard over WLW with the showboat outfit.

He also cited the feudal systems of the old world wherein tenants on land were sold with the land the same as chattels.

POSTMASTER HITS 'CHAIN LETTERS'

COLUMBUS, May 22—Postmaster Nathan A. McCoy entered the battle of federal forces against chain letter promoters here today, ordering all missives suspected of being chain mail held at city post-offices.

McCoy said all chain letters will be stacked in postoffices, pending orders from federal postal authorities on the disposition of the letters.

PAROCHIAL AID VOTE IS URGED

COLUMBUS, May 22—Insisting that the $3,000,000 parochial school appropriations bill be brought to a vote in the Ohio house of representatives, Speaker J. Freer Bittlinger and other administration leaders implored members of the finance committee to report it back to the house with a recommendation for passage.

Twice having failed to muster enough support to reach the floor, the parochial school measure which the senate has passed, was to be reconsidered this afternoon if there is a quorum of the finance committee.

Bitinger Demands Committee Vote Measure to Floor of Assembly

Twelve favorable votes are necessary to report the bill out. The last time it was before the committee, only 11 members would vote for the bill.

RECEIVES MORE AID

Tuesday, the director called the office of his chief, C. C. Stillman, federal administrator for Ohio, and asked for more aid in investigating relief cases. As a result Mr. Stillman has assigned three investigators to review relief cases and weed out the "chiselers."

"The situation is difficult enough," Mr. Coffey said, "without persons who are not entitled to relief coming to our office for orders."

Urges Co-operation

He urges co-operation of all persons, those on relief and those not needing aid, and pledges that his office will do everything it can to right the relief problem in Pickaway-co.

The three officials, each of whom declared the conference was in perfect agreement, were Charles C. Stillman, Ohio FERA head; L. A. Boulton, head of the state PWA; and Benedict Crowell, state director of the National Emergency council.

THREE IN PARLEY

COLUMBUS, May 22—"Complete accord" on plans for the coordination and operation of activities in connection with the administration of the new federal public works program in Ohio was announced at state relief headquarters here today following a conference between the three officials who will be in charge of the program in the state.

Federal Prison Looms for Persons Who Misrepresent Their Needs

MORE ORDERS GIVEN

Assistance Asked by County Director

Warning that persons who apply for relief and misrepresent their circumstances are subject to federal imprisonment, Otto S. Coffey, relief director, announced today that an intensive drive against "chiselers" is in the offing.

Mr. Coffey is faced with a situation which has resulted from agitation. Many families that have not previously been on relief have been applying and receiving grocery orders from the relief office.

E. W. Weiler, sales tax examiner for Pickaway-co, announced today that he will be in his office every afternoon until 4 o'clock from now on having completed his tour of the county to help vendors prepare their sales reports.

Mr. Weiler has changed his residence and his home telephone now is No. 747.

Congress Listens to F. D. R.

Welfare of People Deserves Prior Action, Roosevelt Tells Congress Today

By GEORGE R. HOLMES

WASHINGTON, May 22—President Roosevelt vetoed the veterans' bonus bill today and then explained to a semi-hostile congress his reasons for so doing.

His personal appearance before a joint session, under highly dramatic circumstances, blazed a new trail in presidential procedure.

Mr. Roosevelt said he could not approve paying off the bonus at this time because:

1. The veterans already have hospitalization, employment preference, etc. — benefits not accorded other citizens.

2. It is class legislation for a minority.

Disadvantage to All

3. The proposed method of financing — issuance of treasury notes — is unsound, and would work eventually to the disadvantage of the veterans themselves as well as to the country as a whole.

4. The debt is not due at this time, the contract calling for payment in 1945.

5. The general welfare of the whole people deserves prior consideration to the claims of the veterans.

6. Cash payment at this time would mean an outright gift of $1,600,000,000 to the veterans, above the present value of their compensation certificates.

These were the principal reasons Mr. Roosevelt advanced for disapproving the bill, and he entered into a detailed explanation of each of them. A crowded chamber, from floor to galleries, heard his 5,000-word message, although many senators "cut" the joint session.

Carefully noting the hostility of congress to his mission, the president prefaced his message by asserting at the outset he did not question the good faith of congress in enacting the legislation. His disapproval, he said, was in the same spirit.

Lists Benefits

He recounted at considerable length what the government already has done for the veterans, estimating the total cost of the benefits to date at $7,800,000,000. Payment of the certificates at this time, coupled with normal current

GAS COMPANIES PAY BACK TAX

COLUMBUS, May 22—The state's coffers were enriched by $117,753.40 today as Attorney General John W. Bricker announced settlement of Ohio's claims against the Ohio Fuel Gas company for excise taxes as far back as 1928.

Bricker accepted the settlement of the original state claim of $1,086,048.24 after the state tax commission formally approved the settlement. The payment included $715,653.77 for excise taxes levied against Ohio Fuel Gas company and the Logan Gas company from 1928 to 1934; $1,959.66 for disputed taxes of the Northwestern Ohio Natural Gas company for the same period and $168.97 from the Columbus Gas and Fuel company from 1931 to 1934.

MYERS MAY SEEK MAYOR'S POSITION

CHILLICOTHE, May 22—R. E. Mike Myers, secretary of the Chillicothe Chamber of Commerce, has obtained a petition and is expected to file it for the Democratic nomination for mayor.

TIGERS ANNEX LEAGUE LINKS HONORS AGAIN

John Jenkins Scores 80 to Top Central Buckeye League Golfers

The high school Tigers successfully defended their Central Buckeye league golf title, Tuesday, turning back Granview, Westerville, Bexley and Delaware, the schools finishing in the order named.

The Red and Black combined scores of 80, 87, 88 and 89 to defeat their foes.

The totals were: Circleville, 354; Grandview, 363; Westerville, 392; Bexley, 339; Delaware, 431.

Marysville did not enter a team.

John Jenkins Low

John Jenkins had the low gross score for the day with 41-39, 80, eight above par figures for the Pickaway Country club layout. His brother, Joe, carded 87, Chick Stiers hit the pill for 88 and Harry Richey scored a 99.

Murdock, of Grandview, was second in the medalist class with an 85.

All the members of the high school team are caddies at the country club.

Central Comes Here

A worthy opponent will be offered the high school golf team next Monday when Columbus Central high school invades the local course.

Central is reputed to have one of the best high school golf teams in central Ohio.

TINNING CHOICE TO HALT MILLERS

COLUMBUS, May 22—With the third game of their series slated for today, both the Minneapolis Millers and Columbus Red Birds were expected to send their ace hurlers to the mound in an effort to gain an advantage in the current series which now stands at one game apiece.

Bud Tinning, recently acquired by The Birds from the St. Louis Cards, is expected to get the "nod" from manager Ray Blades while Walter Tauscher probably will be the Kels flinger.

A ninth inning Bird rally fell shy in yesterday's battle and the Millers captured a hard-fought 7 to 6 contest. A circuit club by Johnny Gill, Kel outfielder, with a mate on base in the seventh frame scored the winning run.

Latonia Derby June 1

CINCINNATI, May 22—With one of the track's best meetings in prospect, today's arrivals at the Latonia oval, near here, are expected to shove the track's thoroughbred population well towards the 900 mark.

The feature of the meet, which opens Saturday, is expected to be the Latonia Derby, June 1, which is one of the nation's largest turf affairs.

A's Get Blaeholder

Veteran George Blaeholder (top) of the St. Louis Browns goes to the Athletics, and Pitcher Merrill Cain (left) and Outfielder Ed Coleman (right) are transferred to the Browns in an exchange announced by Manager Connie Mack of the A's. Blaeholder is expected to prove the mainstay of the Philadelphia pitching staff.

BROWNS SET FOR CELLAR

Sell Newsom and Trade Blaeholder, Aces of Staff; Gives Hornsby Headache

NEW YORK, May 22—The St. Louis Browns today had dispelled any lingering doubts that may have existed regarding the eventual occupant of the American league cellar. The Browns themselves took at least a one year's lease on that unwanted spot yesterday when they sold Buck Newsom to the Senators and traded George Blaeholder to the Athletics for Sugar Cain and Big Ed Coleman.

In exchanges the Browns got $50,000 and Rajah Hornsby got a couple more headaches.

Although the Browns made their team more helpless and hopeless than ever by parting with the only real pitchers they had, they assured a tighter race up above.

The addition of Newsom should make the Senators a decided pennant threat for he will strengthen them where they were weakest and the Athletics, too, may move into the picture with Blaeholder, an experienced pitcher who should prove a winner with a good club behind him.

The new set up assures a seven club scramble and what happens to the Browns won't make much difference for they weren't going anywhere anyhow.

TIPPY SERGEANT

COLUMBUS, May 22—Ohio State university's football team will snap through its paces with more precision next fall under the commands of First Sergeant "Tippy" Dye, Pomeroy quarterback.

"Tippy," named William Henry Harrison Dye by his parents, after the famed Indian fighter and president, was promoted to the rank of first sergeant in the university R. O. T. C. officials announced today.

About This And That

BY THE SECOND GUESSER

Enters State Meet

After showing his heels to four county teams, Chillicothe twice Central Buckeye league teams and schools of the central district, Johnny Griffith, high school hurdler, is planning to enter the Ohio high school meet Friday and Saturday at Ohio State university.

He will participate in his pet events, the 220-yard low hurdles and 120-yard high hurdles—Last Saturday Griffith knocked Jack Keller's 220-yard low hurdle mark for a loop doing it in 26 seconds flat ***

Travel to Chicago

By winning either a first or second in the state meet Griffith will be entitled to participate in the national high school meet next weekend at Chicago ***

To Visit Athens

A number of Circleville persons are intending to travel to Athens Saturday to see the Buckeye Athletic association track and field meet—Howard and Dean White, local boys, are expected to score some points for Ohio Wesleyan—The former has twice been high individual scorer in the meet and now holds the league record for points with 18, three first places and one in the second notch ***

Frame is Ready

After 25,000 miles of high speed racing, Fred Frame, is getting ready to throw his career into high gear  The veteran of big league racing, he has whizzed over the nation's speedways in a never-ending quest for gold and glory—yet on the eve of his twentieth year, Fred is setting himself for the fastest test in the 500-mile race May 30 over the Indianapolis Motor speedway ***

He predicts a new record for the half-century classic over the Hoosier speedway, but one can guess it will be 30 in a day's work to fight for his share, for Fred has taken everything in his stride in carving a career as the "outstanding business man racer" ***

3,000 ATHLETES SEEKING HONORS

COLUMBUS, May 22—Crack athletes in four sports fields trained to the peak today for an assault on the state high school titles at Ohio State university here Friday and Saturday.

Winners of district tournaments in track, tennis, golf and baseball, almost 3,000 strong, will converge on the university athletic fields here this week-end.

Class A and B high school track teams representing ten larger schools and nine smaller schools will compete in track and field events. They include: Class A Sandusky, Toledo Scott, Columbus Central, Bellaire, Cleveland East Tech, Collinwood at Cleveland, East Palestine, Cincinnati Withrow, Dayton Roosevelt and Chillicothe.

Class B—Dresden, Euclid Central, Columbiana, Oak Harbor, Wheelersburg, Glendale, Upper Arlington, Delta and North Hampton.

THREE KILLED QUALIFYING IN MOTOR EVENT

Stubblefield, Veteran Race Driver, One of Victims; Other Qualify

INDIANAPOLIS, May 22—Three men were dead and a fourth lay in a critical condition today after two streaking cars were wrecked on the Indianapolis speedway in qualifying trials for the 500 mile automobile classic.

The dead are W. H. "Stubby" Stubblefield, 27, veteran Los Angeles race driver; Leo Whittaker, his riding mechanic, and Johnny Hannon, Norristown, Pa., known as the eastern dirt track champion.

Oscar Reeves, Indianapolis, Hannon's riding mechanic, was seriously injured when Hannon's car went out of control at the third turn while going 85 miles an hour.

Stubblefield late yesterday had completed six of the ten laps in the 25-mile qualifying run when his car skidded on the south-west turn and leaped the retaining wall to wind up a mass of wreckage. Experts were unable to learn what caused the skid, which occurred when the car was doing about 115 miles an hour.

The veteran pilot and Whittaker, tossed clear, died on the way to a hospital.

Undaunted by one of the worst crash tolls in the history of the speedway event, a dozen other drivers were preparing for qualifying trials today. Fourteen have made the grade to date, three qualifying yesterday.

Others Qualify

Egbert Stapp, Los Angeles, qualified with an average speed of 116.736; George Connor, San Bernardino, Calif., 114.321, and A. B. Litz of Dubois, Pa., 114.488

GLENWOOD PARK OPENS SUNDAY

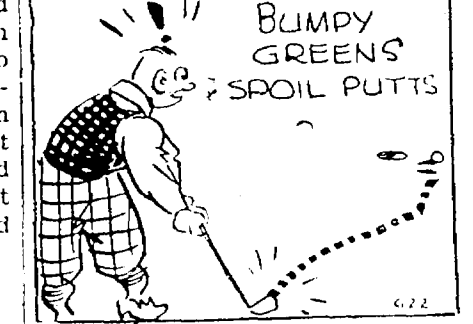

Glenwood Park and pool, popular swimming and dancing resort near Chillicothe, opens the summer season on Sunday with Harold Calver and his orchestra as the opening attraction. A balloon and novelty dance will be held with flowers for the ladies. Dr. F. T. Slagle, of Columbus, is the manager of Glenwood Park.

LITTLE IS VICTOR

ST. ANNE'S-ON-SEA, May 22—Swamping all opposition, W. Lawson Little, Jr., of California strode through the British amateur golf championship with giant strides today, eliminating formidable J. P. Zacharias 4 and 3 in their third round match.

The heavy-set Californian, seeking to retain his title against an impressive field, led a parade of American contestants, with T. Sufferin Tailer, Jr., of Piping Rock, Long Island, being the only Yankee casualty of the morning. He lost out to Eric Fiddian, veteran Britisher, 2 and 1.

GOLF FACTS

Number 622

ALEX MORRISON says: At this time of the year many scores are ruined by bumpy putting greens. Even the shortest of putts can miss the hole, due to an uneven surface near the cup.

This roughness in most cases is a condition that can't be helped. The greenkeepers have to nurse the putting surfaces at the start of the season. They must be careful about rolling. Rolling the greens too soon can spoil them for the entire season.

In a short time though, the surfaces will be smooth so that your putts will run true. They'll go exactly where you send them. If you're entitled to sink them, they'll drop, and your scores will benefit accordingly. Be patient and try to allow for a condition that is unavoidable.

170 POUND JAP TO FACE GIGANTIC FOE

LOS ANGELES, May 22—Wrestling fans today anticipated a freak bout—one between Man Mountain Dean, the 317 pound ex-Brooklyn "traffic cop," and Kiman Kudo, 170 pound Japanese, tonight at the international tournament in Olympic auditorium.

Strangely, Kudo was favored to win.

"He won't stay in one place long enough for the slow moving Man Mountain to make a three-point landing on him," exclaimed backers of the Nipponese.

Other bouts tonight include one between the old maestro, Ed "Strangler" Lewis and Marin Plesitina; between Ernie Dusek, the tournament's leading villain, and Hans Kampher; and between Hans Steinke of Germany and Vincent Lopez of Moscow, Idaho.

BUCK ATHLETES BUSY THIS WEEK

COLUMBUS, May 22—Athletes at Ohio State university rushed through their classroom paces today preparing for the last busy week-end of the athletic season.

Baseball, tennis, track, golf and polo teams of the university will see action Friday and Saturday.

The polo squad will entrain for its game with Illinois tomorrow and the tennis team will leave for Northwestern to start the Western conference net championships.

The Scarlet and Gray diamond squad will continue the series of baseball games started two years ago at Morgantown, W. Va. Two games will be played against West Virginia.

Jesse Owens, Ohio's ebony flash, will lead the track contingent to Ann Arbor, Mich., where the Bucks will strive to carry off Western Conference track and field honors.

Owens, who has blasted record-right and left during the current campaign, is expected to send marks by the boards in the 100 and 220-yard dashes, low hurdles and the broad jump during the conference meet.

STOOGES CLUB HANDLES TICKETS FOR PARK DANCE

The Stoozes club, one of Circleville's newest but most active organizations, has undertaken the task of handling the ticket sale for the "City Park Dance" to be held in Memorial hall as a climax to the drive for park funds June 5.

Miss Ann Bennett, chairman of the dance committee, met with the Stoozes club leaders Tuesday evening at the George Roth home at which time the club voted to handle the tickets.

Dancing will be from 9:30 to 1:30 with Harold "Red" Calver and his Cavaliers providing music.

The dance committee includes Miss Bennett, Mrs. Paul Adkins, Miss Helen Hitler and Mrs. Max Friedman.

CONSERVATION LEAGUE HAS INTERESTING MEETING

Alpha Circle, local chapter of the Child Conservation League of America, held another interesting meeting Tuesday afternoon. The gathering was in the trustees' room of Memorial hall where all future meetings will be held.

The meeting was called to order by president, Mrs. Clark Will, at which Mrs. E. I. Gephart, secretary, read the minutes of the previous meeting. Eighteen members in attendance, Mrs. Delos May, a new member, answered the roll call.

After the regular business session the meeting was turned over to Mrs. Mark Armstrong in charge of the program which included:

Two papers by Mrs. Gephart on "Anger" and "Exhibition of Anger Between Parents and Children Effects Upon the Child."

"How Best to Overcome Fear in the Child by Reason," by Mrs. Armstrong.

"Distinguishing Between Bad Temper and Reasonable Anger," by Mrs. Lester H. Coate.

Miss Mary Wilder, librarian, made an interesting talk in which she explained a display of books now in the trustees' room. The books pertain to child life and include a number of books of interest to mothers.

The public is invited to inspect this book display Wednesday, Thursday or Friday.

D. A. R. MAY MEETING HELD AT MOFFITT HOME TUESDAY

The May meeting of Pickaway Plains chapter Daughters of the American Revolution was a delightful one at the home of Mrs. James P. Moffitt, E. Franklin-st., Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. C. L. Schaefer, Mrs. Noah Warner, Mrs. Elmer F. Bales and Mrs. Adrian Yates as assisting hostesses.

In the absence of the regent, Mrs. G. P. Hunsicker, vice regent, presided at the business meeting. This was opened with a prayer by the chaplain, Mrs. C. C. Watts, followed by a salute to the American flag.

The members decided to hold their June meeting at the Pickaway Country club. This will be a luncheon on June 18.

Joseph Adkins, Jr., spoke briefly before the chapter in behalf of the City Park project, explaining the drive that is to be put on to obtain funds for purchasing a site for this park. The members later voted a contribution for this project.

The program which followed was thoroughly enjoyed by the group. The paper, "Tow-paths," read by Mrs. Beryl Stevenson was most interesting and the musical program, arranged by Mrs. Lee Shaner, consisted of songs popular during the time of the "tow-paths" and canals, both of which played an important part in the early history of Pickaway-co.

The songs, "Yankee Doodle," "Listen to the Mocking Bird," "Lilly Dale," "Lula, Our Darling," "Do They Miss Me at Home," "Wait for the Wagon," "Billy Boy," "The Farmer's Boy" and "The Mountain Maid" were sung as solos, duets and trios by Mrs. Harry Heffner, Miss Mary Radcliffe and Mrs. Moffitt with Miss Abbe Clarke accompanying at the piano.

At the close of the program tea was served at a beautifully appointed table with Mrs. G. P. Hunsicker and Mrs. Bryce Briggs pouring.

MRS. SMITH ENTERTAINS AT LUNCHEON BRIDGE

Mrs. James I. Smith Sr., S. Court-st., entertained with a luncheon-bridge of unusual charming appointments, Tuesday, at her home for the pleasure of her house guest, Mrs. Robert Smith, of Hillsboro. Guests were members of the hostess' two bridge clubs.

Following the luncheon at 1 o'clock bridge was in play at six tables and attractive trophies at the close of the game were awarded Miss Nell Weldon, Mrs. Joseph Wilder and Mrs. Irwin Boggs. Miss Elizabeth Renick assisted Mrs. Smith in extending hospitalities.

Guests at the delightful party were Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Franklin Dundore, of Paoli, Pa., Mrs. Charles Groce, Misses Harriett and Mary Marfield, Mrs. Harry Lewis, Mrs. Charles Lewis, Mrs. Charles Weaver, Mrs. Delano Marfield, Mrs. Elgar Barrere, Miss Sadie Brunner, Miss Grace Moodie, Mrs. Charles Schulze, Mrs. Edwin Lilly, Mrs. Boggs, Mrs. Wilder, Miss Weldon, Mrs. H. THREE ENTERTAIN FOR MRS. KIRKPATRICK

Mrs. Charles Kirkpatrick (Pauline Thomas), a recent bride, was complimented at another delightful party, Tuesday evening, when Miss Myriam Hitchcock, E. Union-st., and Misses Lois and Martha Neff, Stoutsville, entertained at the American Hotel Coffee Shop.

Bridge and hearts were diversions of the pleasant evening and prize at the conclusion of play went to Miss Loretta Schwartz, a lovely guest prize was also presented the honored guest.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick was showered with many beautiful gifts from the guests, after which a delicious lunch was served at an attractively appointed table, pink and white predominating.

Enjoying the party were Mrs. A. L. Kefauver and Miss Fern Rife of Stoutsville; Miss Leota Hilder and Miss Schwartz of Lancaster; Miss Mary Ellen Kirkpatrick, Miss Elizabeth Cady, Mrs. Myra Rader, Miss Ellen Leist, Mrs. Kirkpatrick and the hostesses.

Mrs. Bishop Given, S. Court-st., was hostess at an informal evening bridge party, Tuesday evening, at her home. Guests at the enjoyable affair included members of her club and a few additional friends.

Contract bridge was in play at three tables and prizes were awarded Mrs. Joseph Burns and Mrs. Sterling Lamb club members, and Mrs. Neil Barton, a guest.

Spring flowers decorated the home and centered the small tables for the delicious lunch served later in the evening.

Guests beside the club members included Mrs. Dwight Steele, Mrs. Barton, Mrs. Melvin Yates, Mrs. Charles Blundell, Mrs. Barton Daming, Mrs. Donald H. Watt, Mrs. Carl Snider and Mrs. Virgil Cress.

Y. P. B. MEETS AT WARD HOME

At its regular meeting, Tuesday evening, at the home of Robert Ward, E. Mill-st., the Young People's Branch of the Women's Christian Temperance union elected officers for the coming year.

Evelyn Ward was named president; Franklin Blagg, vice president, and Harriett McGath, secretary-treasurer.

The convention to be held June 23 was discussed.

A short program followed and refreshments were served by Robert and Evelyn Ward.

John Maxey, student at Christian Normal Institute at Grayson, Ky., came Tuesday for a visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. Tibbs Maxey, E. Main-st.

SPANISH ROMEO CROSSES OCEAN

NATAL, Brazil, May 22—Having happily topped the Mediterranean and the Atlantic, Juan Ignacio Pombó, Spanish "air Romeo," intends to brook no delay in getting to his lady love in Mexico City.

He inspected and refueled, his plane, named after Santander, Spain, where he first wooed Elena Rivero, preparatory for an early start on the next leg of his perilous love jaunt.

Pombó said he had no difficulty in his 15-hour flight from Bahia, West Africa, except for clouds on the last part of the journey. He had favorable winds all the way.

MEXICO CITY, May 22—Mexico City is planning a great welcome for Juan Ignacio Pombó, 21 year old Spanish flyer, when he arrives here, but the most thrilled of all is his 19 year old fiancée, Elena Rivero.

Senorita Rivero proclaimed when she heard Pombó had safely crossed the Atlantic, that she was "enchanted."

But she revealed that she had been worried all the while for she never thought Pombó would take up her challenge to fly here from Spain.

"It was only to get a laugh that I dared him to do it," she said.

Mr. and Mrs. Clinger Rummel and family, E. Main-st., left for Lancaster, Pa., Wednesday morning, to make their future home.

PRETTY WORK

HERE IS AN interesting hand sent in by Mrs. G. R. Wilson, Glen Falls, N. Y. Although the bidding was unusual South finally arrived at the best call of 3-No Trumps. The opening lead was the 5 of hearts.

North and South alone are vulnerable. East has doubled, and both he and declarer should use what appears to them to be the best strategy. How many tricks can South win against the best subsequent defense of East, whose double renders him the defenders' captain.

Win the first trick with East's K of hearts. His best chance to defeat the contract is to employ his high spades, let East do what he likes, lead back his lowest club. South's K will win. To go game South must win two tricks in each black suit and five diamonds, or the substitution of a heart trick for one of the spade tricks. Play the hand any way you like. Leading a high spade from the short end of that suit is the most normal method of offense. Naturally East will not win the first spade trick, but when the K is followed by the Q it is probable that East will take his Ace of spades, as he has that suit stopped again. If East refuses the second spade trick, waiting for South to lead a third round of spades, South can force East into the lead with the Ace of hearts, leading the Q of hearts. Suppose that East puts up his Ace of hearts. When South leads the second round of clubs by leading the 6 of that suit, West's J will force dummy's Ace, leaving the suit established for East, who still has entry in his Ace of hearts.

Start running off five diamond tricks. At the end of the third round of that suit the players will hold as shown below.

Here is a second problem, with South in the lead and bound to win two tricks in diamonds and the J of hearts, let East do what he likes. Lead next to East what he likes, let go one of dummy's hearts. East must let go a club, to prevent dummy's spades from both becoming good. Lead the last diamond and let go dummy's last heart. If East lets go his Ace of hearts both declarer's hearts become good and South will be made. East can assure himself a single trick in clubs by letting go one of his spades, or he can make certain of a single spade trick by letting go his good club. He will prevent the declarer should win 4-odd.

Washington Merry-go-round

formed some astute maneuvering in the Senate and got his bill through like a breeze. But in the other end of the Capitol, it got blocked in the House Military Affairs Committee.

Most significant is the fact that chief blockers are representatives of the coal and power interests, with Andrew J. May, Kentucky Democrat, representing the first; and Donald H. McLean, New Jersey Republican, the second.

In the secrecy of the committee room May makes no bones about the nature of his opposition.

"I represent a coal district," he declared, "and the TVA is not helping it any."

Publicly, white-haired John McSwain, Chairman of the House Committee, says he is confident the bill will be approved. But privately, he admits that unless the President is able to exert enough personal pressure on the Democratic recalcitrants, the bill is doomed.

Good Actor

Senator Joe Guiffey and Representative Pat Boland, Democratic whip of the House, have been carrying on a bitter feud over Pennsylvania patronage. Exchanges between them have been hot and sulphurous.

But not in public. Then it is a different story.

The other day Boland was talking to friends on the steps of the Capitol when Guiffey passed by. The two men greeted each other like long lost brothers.

"Pat, old man, how are you?" crooned Guiffey.

"Fine, Joe, how are you?" After some further amenities, Guiffey departed. Whereupon Boland turned to his friends, remarked with much feeling: "Huh, he can't put anything over on me. I guess I can be just as smooth as he if I want to."

ATHLETE REFUSES JOB WITH DAVEY

COLUMBUS, May 22—John E. Halliday, Jr., Gallipolis, attache in the governor's office, today declined an appointment as executive secretary to Gov. Martin L. Davey because of his desire to resume private law practice as soon as the pressure of the legislative session is relieved.

The post has been vacant since Dan W. Duffy resigned to become a Cleveland municipal judge. Charles Leasure, Zanesville, unsuccessful candidate for congressman-at-large last fall, and State Sen. John Hunter (D) Toledo, are being mentioned as possible appointees.

11 Youthful Kentuckians Entertain High Students

By GEORGE AMMER

Differing from the usual courses on such topics, a group of eleven young Kentuckians presented a drama to illustrate life in the mountain regions Tuesday before an eager and attentive audience of high school students.

Headed by Dan Martin, a graduate of the Caney Creek Junior college, and including students representing all divisions of the school, this group for the past eight weeks has been on a good-will tour through seven states endeavoring to bring before their audiences a more true and concise picture of the modes of living in the remote regions of the "Blue Grass State."

The play presented pointed out the need in this section of the country for professional training, which was the reason this mountain institution the Caney Creek school, was founded. Divisions of this school range from the first grade through Junior college. Students entering the school, the director of the troupe stated, pledge themselves, after they have received their training, to return to their native communities and use their knowledge for the betterment of the section from which they came.

Professions for which members of this group are training include law, medicine, engineering and teaching.

The school is grateful to Ed Sensenbrenner who made the arrangements for the program.

The Home - Economics class under the direction of Miss Gertrude Pignat prepared a luncheon for the entertainers.

The program, following the theme of the advantages of compulsory education in the more advanced communities as compared with conditions in the more remote sections, was moving, gripping.

The acting was splendid and certainly surprised the spectators by being different from what they expected.

REASON TO GO STRAIGHT

IN 1931 a masked bandit held up a grocery in Hammond, Ind. The victims of the robbery identified Edward Singleton, a war veteran and house painter, as the bandit and he was sentenced to Michigan City penitentiary, where he remained until a month ago. In March of this year a 23-year-old salesman of Hammond confessed the crime. In a court at Crown Point, a few days ago, the true culprit, Ralph Harwood, appeared for sentence and as the court was about to pronounce it, Singleton, a month out of prison, stepped to the bar. "Your Honor," he said, "this young man isn't a real criminal. He has gone straight since the robbery. I served four years in prison for that crime. Let that be enough. I bear no grudge against Harwood. I am pleading that you show clemency." Harwood's sentence was suspended.

Whatever one may think of the logic of the plea, it is one of the most touching incidents we have come upon in the news in a long time. Surely, greater love hath no man than that he allow compassion efface the memory of four years' purgatory in prison and the present necessity of assembling the ruins of a career. If ever a man was under moral compulsion to give society the best that is in him it is one, like Harwood, whose debt to it has been assumed by another who feels no enmity on that account, but on the contrary affirms his faith in the one responsible for his cruel plight.

We question the accuracy of the conclusion that the senator from Louisiana is more irritating than the seven years' itch. He is elected for only six years.

FORMULA FOR PEACE

PLYING to a student who had inquired how undergraduates might work effectively for international peace, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, declared that "mere official outbursts and declarations against war and against participation in war are quite futile." The practical course, in his opinion, is to support American adherence to the world court.

But here Dr. Butler is also, unrealistic. However admirable an intention the world court may be for settling minor differences, it fails to reach the fundamental causes of war which lie at present primarily in economic regions. So long as nations deprive each other of the means of livelihood through extreme and foolish trade restrictions, the world is bound to continue in unstable equilibrium.

Perhaps he should say to his inquiring student: "Young man, do not expect any world court to open markets to Germany or to force the United States to stop ruining China by draining it of its silver. If you really want to promote peace start at home by using your influence for saner tariff and monetary policies."

HEALTH IS GOOD BUSINESS

MEN and women live longer now than did those of half a century ago. The life span has been increased 17 years. The gain is the result of knowledge.

Sickness and death are tragedies in the experience of individuals but from the point of view of the interests of the community, they are just plain bad business. The service of every able-bodied man to society as a whole has a certain definite cash value. If he lives and keeps well he ought to be counted upon to contribute to the wealth of the community.

This is one justification for spending money collected from the public to protect public health. It is community insurance. Millions are wasted every year, because persons are laid up by sickness.

It is the business of organized society to protect itself against attacks of disease which grow out of bad living conditions. Public money is well and justifiably spent in preventing the accumulation of filth, in providing a safe water supply, in enforcing quarantine regulations, in spreading health information, in providing clinics for the treatment of those unable to secure medical services at their private expenses.

A "problem child" is an unwhim with a flat wheel on his roller skates.

If only you could save a dollar every day instead of having to do it over every day.

Our domestic limburger, says an authority on the subject, is now the equal of any on earth. Whether or not this is progress is all a matter of personal opinion.

STORMY LOVE

A YOUNG NAVY MAN'S ROMANCE BELLE BURNS GROMER

READ THIS FIRST:

After bidding good-bye to his childhood sweetheart, Julie Edging, who is sailing for the United States where her father, Captain Edging, has been assigned to Pacific Sound Navy Yard, carefree Lieutenant Valentine Preston, attached to the gunboat in China, sees an attractive girl in a passing rickshaw on the streets of Shanghai. He recognizes her as the same girl who had departed his life to Julie's father in the harbor by taking the last steamer in sight from the pier. Following in another rickshaw, both aloft at the same hotel, they become engaged in conversation, have a cocktail together and Val learns she is from South Carolina. Later he caresses himself and goes to the bar alone. (NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 8

FROM the time he could walk Val remembered standing protectively beside his fragile little mother in hotel bedrooms to hear his naval officer father's charge, "Take good care of Mommie, son, until Dad comes home again." He had adored the small, dependent mother whose fingers, like his own, could conjure magic harmonies from a piano. She had died when he was eight but he had never forgotten her; a few years later his Dad, too, had slipped away. After that, more boarding schools; at seventeen an appointment to the Naval Academy, and since graduation six years ago, a cubbyhole room aboard various battleships of the U. S. N.

Which left him here drinking by himself! A hell of a note! The persistent thought of Lieutenant Valentine Preston, a lieutenant, came to torment him. That bird would not be lonely tonight. Just about now he'd be meeting Jan and the Captain in the lounge, they would walk on deck in the moonlight. With Jan in his thoughts, hadn't he watched the silver crescent grow all the voyage down-river?

He stared along the bar with disillusioned eyes. A dull, uninteresting crowd here. He hadn't even the satisfaction of getting a kick from his drinks. In the midst of laughter and music he felt infinitely lonely and depressed. He decided suddenly to shove off for the club; it was sure to be livelier than this morgue; and since he was bound to stir up excitement on one sort or another before the night was over, he supposed he might as well go top-side and change into dinner clothes.

Coming out into the lounge again, he was surprised to see the girl still sitting where he had left her, and as he stood watching the small figure, he noted that although the aura of smart sophistication still persisted yet she appeared a bit youthful and forlorn. Since he must pass close to the corner she occupied, it seemed only decent to pause for a word.

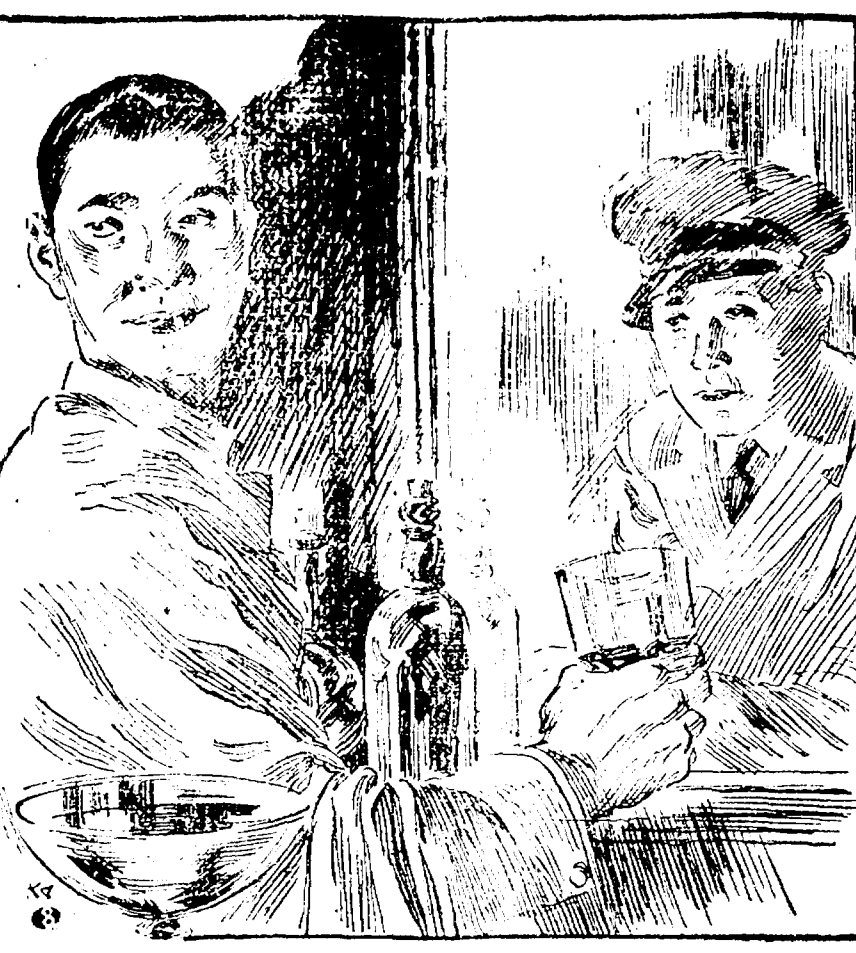

"It is quieter than usual here this evening," he said politely. "The Captain is attending the tea crowd this week, I suppose."

She looked up with such an eager little smile that he was struck anew by that fleeting wistfulness. He knew what it meant to be depressed; it touched him to see melancholy in those velvet dark eyes.

He dropped suddenly into the chair facing her, and said, "Look here, is something wrong? Is there any way I can help?"

There was a pause before she answered. She stared down at the lovers on the enameled cigarette case and ran a crimson nail up and down along the lid. Finally she asked softly, "What's the most agreeable person you know?"

For a moment he was taken aback but presently a smile twitched on the corner of his good-looking mouth.

Which left him here drinking by himself.

And so the charming little lady had a game after all. He must have guessed. He slipped to the edge of the chair, his body leaning forward, his hands between his knees. "Have you any good ideas of your own on this subject?" he asked. He wondered who and what she was. He couldn't be quite sure, but now he was interested.

The girl countered with her own question. "You are an officer, aren't you? I saw your navy ring when you put the coin in the beggar baby's shoe."

"I'm Valentine Preston, a lieutenant attached to the gunboat Panay of the Yangtze Patrol."

He had heard the surname before, but where he could not for the life of him recall. "French?" he asked. "French Huguenot a long way back?" Her voice was musical and slow. She touched the setting of his ring with a tiny finger.

"What do you mean, 'not allowed'?" he demanded indignantly. There was a pause before she answered. "You see, I-I am a companion to an old woman who goes to have her friends. She is very kind to me. I-I told her South-ern drawl, guiltless of the letter 't'. This mother had had an recent idea that the girl went on. 'We live in an old house on the Ashley, very droll and lovely. Sometimes I wish we had a mother like you. You let me have any fun, tonight is the first time I-I have been free to do as I pleased.'"

She stared away and her red mouth quivered slightly. The story didn't hold together, of course. The French coat, the mother, the old woman, the expensive French clothes put her out of the matronly companion class. He wondered how old she was and came to the conclusion she must be twenty-three or four. Just another pretty little thing, looking for adventure and a change of scene.

"Look here," he said, "I'm a little tight, and later on there is an excellent chance for a little drink. However, if you care to dine and dance with me I can promise to be widely read by mid-western financiers and investors."

"I don't stop eating any more," said Mr. Johnson. "I got a lot of pleasure out of working in my vegetable garden. I don't believe in 'all work and no play,' but believe all should be able to enjoy some sort of recreation in order to be better fitted for his regular job."

So if you want to take the day off and go fishing, you have a perfectly good excuse. You can work better the next day.

Editorial Of The Day

WHERE RELIEF FAILS

(Cincinnati Enquirer)

Captain John Smith believed in work. He thought the only way to Jamestown would never put Virginia on the map unless everybody labored, cleared the forest, planted corn, built mills, dug wells, and in these ways started the upbuilding of civilization.

Most of the colonists thought the thing to do was to live on the food brought from England, and to loaf. Then came down Captain John Smith's heavy hand. "He who will not work, unless he is disabled by illness, shall not eat." That was his dictum, and he meant it.

Then it was that Jamestown really made a start. It was hard work that planted Virginia in the wilderness. This had been on his list from the beginning. The ax and the plow, backed by the rifle, conquered America and made the United States what it is today.

After she had disappeared in the lobby Val crossed the lobby and asked a guarded question or two at the desk. When he ascended to his own room he wore an amused grin. Nothing more was known of Miss Lia Garonne than that she had arrived at the Astor just before midnight. But there was no Garcon-like employer in the office; on the contrary, the young lady was quite alone!

While the room coolie fetched towels and ran the water for his bath Val flung out of his clothes. The would looked merry and bright once more. Lia Garonne might prove plenty interesting.

Stretching his bronzed young body, he cast an appreciative eye over the cosy chairs, the luxurious bed, and the flowered chintzes that made his room in the Astor a pleasant contrast to his quarters on the gunboat.

Some men, he thought, lived all their lives surrounded by just such comforts as these; and he wondered for the thousandth time what the hell a fellow saw in the navy and why he had let himself in for it.

Paul had revolved him of looking for the soft jobs. And why not? When he had chosen a navy career it had been with the resolve that it should never get its claws into him if he could prevent it. Look what it had done to his parental purse! His mother would not be supposed to have a car, let alone a house, let alone a summer home. A few years later Paul's life had been snuffed out from overfatigue and pneumonia, contracted from too long hours on the open bridge on an old type cruiser as he battled to bring her safely through a slashing North Atlantic blizzard.

THEATRES

AT THE CLIFTONA

Douglas Fairbanks' fans will welcome the agile star back to the Cliftona Theatre today in one of those colorful swashbuckling roles with which he is generally identified. The picture is London Films' "The Private Life of Don Juan," which offers the dashing Doug an opportunity to wear more colorful costumes and achieve more daring feats than ever before.

The intriguingly lovely Merle Oberon, who is perhaps the most talked about and glamorous new personality in the film world, is seen opposite Doug as Pepita, the Spanish dancer. Benita Hume plays his wife, while Dinnie Barnes, Joan Gardner, Patricia Hillard and Princess Natalie Paley represent a few of the many other amorous episodes in Don Juan's romantic career.

Lavishly mounted, "The Private Life of Don Juan" boasts the largest and most pretentious sets ever built in England and hundreds of breath-takingly beautiful costumes designed by Oliver Messel. The film is released through United Artists.

AT THE GRAND

To theatregoers who are fed up on sex triangles, gang wars, racing thrillers, and other threadbare movie plots, it should be welcome news to hear that the Columbia production, "No Greater Glory," is to be shown at the Grand Theatre.

The screen story is based on Ferenc Molnar's novel, "Paul Street Boys." It deals with a cross-section of life, which reflects the author's intimacy with the part of Budapest, Hungary, that is its setting. It might as well be Boston, however, or Buenos Aires, England or Japan, so far as the university of its appeal is concerned.

AT THE CIRCLE

Ralph Forbes, star of "The Sound" now playing at the Circle Theatre, made his first screen hit as one of the three brothers in "Ben Geste," the Herbert Brenson sensation of a few years ago.

Forbes had come to the United States from England to play in the stage production of "Havoc." His work in this play and in several William A. Brady productions established him as a Broadway favorite, and led to his signing by Brenon for "Ben Geste."

Words Found by Literati Long Known to Physicians

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE OTHER evening I spent with a group of learned and literary gentlemen who were presenting themselves on having discovered some new words. They make their living by words, so it is part of the game to titillate the public by springing unfamiliar results of research on them. The curious thing was they were nearly all medical words.

Mr. Alexander Woollett has unearthed "estivate." He called it "a hard word, but the next time they were nearly all medical words."

Mr. Vincent Starrett had run across "borborygmi." He called it "under his tongue." He called attention to its marvelous qualities as a pure piece of pronunciation. Yet "borborygmi" has been familiar to me since long before I can remember, and its connotations have robbed it of all sense of beauty.

Mr. Noel Coward was enthralled with "argyria." And one must admit that is a handsome word, either written or pronounced.

BIG THREE OF HUGE RELIEF FUND ORGANIZATION

Ickes Walker Hopkins

With the appointment of Harry Hopkins, relief administrator, as director of the works progress division of the $4,000,000,000 work relief fund organization, President Roosevelt has made it clear that the three heads of the key units of the entire organization are on an equal footing. The other two heads are Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes, chairman of the work allotment division, and Frank C. Walker, director of the division of applications and information.

MACK DESIGNATES SON TO SUCCEED HIM AS MANAGER

Connie Mack, Jr. Connie Mack Earl Mack

When 72-year-old Connie Mack comes to the end of his baseball career, the patriarchal manager of the Philadelphia Athletics says his eldest son, Earl, who is 45 years old, will succeed him as manager. For several years Earl, former successful minor league manager, has been one of the A's coaches. Now Connie Mack, Jr., also is understudying his famous father. The Mack family is pictured, left to right, Connie, Jr., Connie and Earl. Young Connie is a graduate of Duke university.

Fixes Her Value at $250,000

New photos of H. Brandon Smith and his former wife, Anne Cannon Smith, whose father he is suing for $250,000, charging alienation of affections. She defended father, declaring she never loved Smith, whom she wed after her divorce from late Smith Reynolds, whose millions will be shared by her daughter.

Heads Relief Pickets

Edward C. Morgan

Edward C. Morgan of Staunton, Ill., president of the Illinois Workers' Alliance, is head of the relief pickets who have been picketing before the state capital in Springfield. The pickets have been protesting the closing up of many food relief stations throughout the state, because the state will not levy taxes to meet the federal government's allotments.

Such Treatment!

The bandits who robbed Boston travel bureau where the sisters Iris and Sylvia Beals (above) are employed certainly cannot be classed as "gentlemen." They forced the girls to disrobe to foil pursuit. (Central Press)

He'll Build More

Andre N. Touploff, builder of the Martin Gorky, largest plane in the world, which crashed at Moscow with loss of 48 lives, is hurrying back to U.S.S.R. from U. S. tour to build three more ships of same size.

Huptmann Counsel

Vincent Marco

Reports were current that Vincent Marco, former Cleveland attorney recently practicing in Los Angeles, would join the legal staff in defense of Bruno Hauptmann, convicted of slaying the Lindbergh baby. It was said that Marco claimed to have new evidence that would help the Bronx carpenter in his fight for life.

Represents Ethiopia

Italian government may reject Dr. Benjamin Potter (above) as one of Ethiopia's arbiters on con- cerning commission. He is American citizen and professor of international law at the University of Geneva, Switzerland, where he has long acted as advisor to Abyssinian delegates to League of Nations. (Central Press)

Victim of Ducking

Monroe Sweetland

Asserting that free speech will be preserved at the University of Wisconsin at all costs, President Glenn Frank struck back at four football players who led an anti-liberal demonstration resulting in lake duckings for four asserted radicals. Monroe Sweetland, above, national student organizer for the League for Industrial Democracy, was in the midst of a speech when the athletes seized him and ducked him in Lake Mendota at Madison.

Federation Candidate

Dr. Josephine L. Peirce of Lima, O., is candidate for president of the General Federation of Women's clubs, which will hold its triennial convention in Detroit, June 4-12. She believes that as head of this organization of 2,000,000 women she will have "a rare opportunity to serve humanity," she states. Dr. Peirce has been a teacher and physician, is married and has two children, both grown. She has been active in the Ohio Public Health association, mental hygiene groups, Parent-Teacher association, state library committee and recreation commission. Two Ohio governors have named her the only woman member of the Ohio relief commission.

EXERCISE HASN'T HARMED THIS GAI

Molly Lamont

Molly Lamont, newest British screen actress to find film work in the United States, is a picture of happiness as she takes her daily exercise on the lawn of a Los Angeles hotel. She believes that her special routine of calisthenics would be greatly beneficial to the American girl who wants to keep her figure trim. It certainly hasn't done Molly any harm!

SAILOR HAT HAS A CHINESE FLAVOR

If you fancy the Oriental touch and you'll like this rolled brimmed sailor with a decided Chinese flavor. It's an eggshell straw, bound with matching crepe, and not trimmed except for the coolie loop in the center of the crown. Virginia Reid is the model.

OUR YESTERDAYS When an Article About a Sunset Gave "Sunset" Cox His Nickname

What a stormful sunset was that of last night! How glorious the storm and how splendid the setting of the sun! We do not remember ever to have seen the like on our round globe. The scene opened in the west, with a whole horizon full of golden impenetrating luster, which colored the foliage and brightened every object in its own rich dyes. The colors grew deeper and richer, until the golden luster was transformed into a storm-cloud, full of finest lightning, which leaped in dazzling zigzags all around and over the city. The wind arose with fury, the slender shrubs and quaint trees made obeisance to its majesty. Some even snapped before its force. The strawbe- Zephyrus m- is the rain came, and the pools formed, and the gutters he- roared grandly, and the fire-bells rang with hearty chorus. The south and east received the light of the west all at once brightened the sky. Presently the form of a Sicilian sky. Presently the form of a Sicilian sky. Presently the form of a Sicilian sky.

Samuel S. (Sunset) Cox: part of his famous article; statue of Cox. IT ISN'T ALWAYS necessary to build a bridge, become a dictator or paint a picture to win fame. One man became famous merely because he wrote an article about a sunset. He was Samuel S. Cox, a politician and writer, who was known widely during his adult life as "Sunset" Cox as a result of his article. The story Cox wrote on the sunset, a florid description of nature's beauty, was published in the Ohio Statesman at Columbus, O., on May 19, 1883, when he was only 29. "A Great Old Sunset" was the title of the article. It fastened upon Cox a nickname which clung to him throughout his career as a member of Congress from Ohio and New York.

What Notable Women Are Wearing Now

It's what the notable women wear, not what the fashion designers proffer, that makes the styles. Here is trend of the mode is exemplified by (from left) Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Boettiger, daughter of the President, shown at the races; Grace Moore, operatic singer, and Katharine Cornell, actress. The latter two were snapped sailing for Europe. Note that all three favor the small hat, and that Mrs. Boettiger is taking no heed of fads' attempt to lengthen skirts. (Central Press)

PATTERN 9378

This is one of those "not so easy to find" frocks which offer the slightly heavier woman fashion and slimmness at the same time—that can be achieved in double-quick time with this easy pattern! The skirt section points up into the flattering bodice, creating an illusion of slenderness. The clever cape with its raglan cut in front falls gracefully from any shoulder and does a lot towards equalizing imperfect proportions. A large jabot adds just the dainty note the stout woman needs and loves! A sheer cotton or silk printed with small motif is a perfect choice. Complete, Diagrammed, Marian Martin Sew Chart included.

Pattern 9378 may be ordered only in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 requires 3 1/2 yards 29 inch fabric and 3/4 yard 36 inch lace.

Let the MARIAN MARTIN SPRING PATTERN BOOK GUIDE YOU TO CHIC! Distinctive, Wearable clothes are included in its forty beautifully illustrated pages. JANE ADDAMS, WORLD PEACE LEADER, DIES

Internal Cancer Fatal to Aged Woman; Body Lying In Home She Founded

CHICAGO, May 22.—In the famous Hull house settlement which she founded the body of Miss Jane Addams lay today as a sorrowing thousands came to pay final tribute to the stout-hearted friend of the underprivileged and advocate of world peace.

Until 2 p. m. tomorrow, when simple denominational services will be held in Hull house court the body of Miss Addams will lie at rest in Bower hall for friends to view. Following the funeral services Miss Addams' body will be taken to her birthplace at Cedarville, Ill.

Death claimed the noted social worker last evening at 6:15 o'clock in Passavant hospital where she underwent an operation last Saturday to relieve an abdominal obstruction. Before she lapsed into a coma earlier in the day Miss Addams told her nephew, James Weber Linn:

"I think I have done my work and I am satisfied. If the time has come I am ready."

Suffered Cancer With her death doctors revealed that Miss Addams was suffering from an internal cancer that would have proved fatal within the short span of a few months had she survived the operation. She had not been informed although the cancer first was found when the social worker underwent an operation for tumor at Baltimore in 1931.

Despite her 74 years Miss Addams displayed her famous "zeal for life" by putting up a valiant fight for recovery until a sudden reversal yesterday caused her to sink rapidly.

Dr. Charles A. Elliott, one of the three attending physicians, said Miss Addams continued in a deep sleep and coma all through the day and until death set in.

Flowers Fill Room Truck loads of flowers, sent by friends and admirers in all parts of the country, lined the room where the humanitarian's body lay. Crowding the room were civic leaders and the social leaders and the social elite mingling with the women and children settlement house residents to whom Miss Addams had devoted her life.

One of the first telegrams expressing grief at Miss Addams' death came from Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Congress Listens to F. D. R.

and future expenditures for the veterans, would run the total bill up to $13,500,000,000 by 1945, he said, or a sum equal to more than three-fourths of the total cost of the war.

The Patman bill, he noted, set forth three principal reasons for cash payment of the veterans' certificates: (1) that it will increase the purchasing power of millions of citizens; (2) that it will provide relief for many in need; and (3) it will lighten the relief burden of cities, counties and states.

While it is undeniably true, he admitted, that payment would result in expansion of retail trade, retail business already is good, comparing favorably with pre-depression figures. The proposed issue of treasury notes would quickly return to the banks, he argued, and the banks already have ample credit facilities.

Not Justify Claims "The ultimate effect of this bill," he said, "will not in the long run justify the expectations that been granted generous benefits through compensations, insurance, have been raised by those who argue for it."

As for the relief angle, he asserted congress has just appropriated $4,880,000,000 for relief purposes, and in this the veterans will share along with other citizens.

"I hold," he said, "that an able-bodied citizen, because he wore a uniform and for no other reason, should be accorded no treatment different from that accorded to other citizens who did not wear a uniform during the World war.

The failure of congress to provide taxes to pay the bonus would alone warrant disapproval of the bill, he said.

The message was one of the lengthiest Mr. Roosevelt has submitted to congress. He concluded it on a personal note by saying he realized the disappointment his veto will occasion to thousands. But he held he had a moral obligation to the whole country.

"I cannot swerve from this moral obligation," he asserted.

He was reminded, he said, of the millions who performed other than military service during the war, of the five million families now in need, and of the future.

"Welfare of Nation" "I believe," he concluded, "the welfare of the nation, as well as the future welfare of the veterans, wholly justifies my disapproval of this measure."

PAROCHIAL AID

bill out was scheduled for Tuesday but so many members failed to answer Chairman Julian Schweller's call for a special meeting that he postponed it until this afternoon.

The bill provides for an appropriation of $3,000,000 for parochial schools and $2,000,000 for denominational colleges. In some quarters, the belief was expressed that the administration has finally rounded up the 12 votes necessary to put the measure on the floor. Whether the house will pass the bill, if it is reported out, was a matter of considerable speculation.

Among the measures awaiting final action tomorrow were the Traxler $48,000,000 foundation school bill, the $15,000,000 poor relief bond bill, the $96,000,000 general appropriations bill, the Waldvogel liquor bill, the Davey government reorganization measure, and the Beaver-Mahoning canal bill.

PICKAWAY-TWP SCHOOL SCENE OF FESS TALK

The speaker raised pertinent questions about individual effort the thing that has made the greatest nation the world has ever known. He argued from history and from reason that the safety and security of our government lie in individual effort unhampered by circumstances or by government.

"Blot out ten names and you blot out all English literature; destroy 20 names and you destroy inventions that have made us great; eliminate two dozen names and you eliminate music; wipe out 25 names and you wipe out the automobile industry. The 50,000 individuals who have contributed to science, invention, industry, music, art and progress are more important than the fifty million who make no contribution to these fields," Mr. Fess said.

"What we need," he went on, "is more attention to the leadership of these few men, as individuals, rather than the catering to the masses who can not make a lasting contribution to the productive fields of human progress."

Effort Is Backbone
The speaker insisted that individual effort is the backbone of progress and stability. "Destroy that and you destroy civilization," he said.

Senator Fess closed with an appeal for the theory that there is a chance for everybody and an appeal to the young man and woman, particularly, to take advantage of that chance to make a contribution to self and to society by taking advantage of the many chances offered everywhere if only they will think and work.

The speaker was introduced by M. C. Warren, Pickaway-twp superintendent, who paid a glowing tribute to the man who served for a long while in the U. S. senate.

Mr. Warren in presenting Senator Fess said: "I present him to you as a great teacher, a matchless orator, a profound scholar, a friend and a gentleman."

The large Pickaway-twp auditorium was filled with many persons standing. All were attentive to the last word.

At the close of the exercises Fred Dudleson, president of the senior class, presented Edward A. Fries, principal of the high school for the past two years, a beautiful birthday and key holder. The entire high school made the present in token of their appreciation. Mr. Fries asked to be relieved of further duties in the school.

The entire commencement service was artistic with splendid music having an important part.
